The type of girl folks like to trust

An attractive character, gentle and sensitive in spirit; with an alert and humorous mind, quick to respond to kindness and affection, a quietly tenacious will, keen sensibility and love of music and all beautiful things, and an instinctive bias towards the spiritual. Somewhat impractical and idealistic at times, but the type of girl folks like to trust.

The above is a Delineation of a reader's character from her handwriting. See others in the Weekly Irish Times

TREATMENT WHEN IN MOULT.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

When the hens stop laying about this time they should be fed more sparingly, as they do not eat so much when they are moulting. However, the food given to them should be of a very nourishing character. In the soft mash a little boiled linseed and some meat should be given, and in the grain a little hemp and sunflower seed mixed in will help the growth of the feathers. A little sulphur in the soft mash about once a week stimulates the new growth of feathers as well as helping to cast off the old ones. If possible, the moulting hens should be kept apart from the others, and the cocks should be separated from them. The moulting birds should not be too much under the direct rays of the sun, as the new plumage grows better and has a more natural gloss in the shade. Plenty of green food and fresh, clean water should be supplied at all times.

The men—Richard O'Toole, Scully's cottages, Dun Laoghaire, and Terence Moore, Eden Vale, Glasthule—were also fined 10s. Neiland said that he sent O'Toole to bring the animals from a field, but did not tell him to tie them. STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

The number of cattle forward for yesterday's sale was not quite so large as for several weeks past. The attendance of buyers was on the small side, but there was very little change in values of good quality well bred sorts. Aged cattle and secondary sorts, however, met a poor demand, and even at reduced rates a clearance could not be made. Quotations—Aberdeen Angus and Hereford crosses made from 17/- to 22/- per cwt. live weight, and horned and polled cattle from 14/- to 20/-.

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Following the quieter trade of late, the entries for the store sale were rather less than for some time past, excepting for really nice quality heifers and bullocks, for which there was good enquiry. Although at somewhat less money, the bidding generally was more cautious, plain sorts being more difficult to turn into money. Quotations—Hereford and Aberdeen Angus crosses made from 20/- to 22/- per cwt., horned and polly bullocks 16/- to 19/- per cwt. Shornhorn heifers from 17/- to 20/- per cwt.

CLAIM TO MILITARY PENSION.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN.)

The hearing of the appeal in the case of James P. Conroy, a retired Army officer, of 14 Richmond Parade, North Circular road, Dublin, against the Minister for Defence and the Minister for Finance was concluded, and judgment was reserved.

The appeal was brought on behalf of the plaintiff from a judgment of the High Court dismissing his claim for a declaration that he was entitled to be granted a military service pension under the Military Service Pensions Act, 1924. The plaintiff, it was stated, had served with the Irish Volunteers, or Oglaigh na hEireann, from 1914, and, after the truce, in the National Army, from which he retired with the rank of commandant in 1924. He was examined by the Board of Assessors set up under the Military Service Pensions Act, 1924, and on 18th December, 1924, he obtained from the Department of Defence a certificate of his military service, but his application for a pension had been refused.

The defence was that the action was not maintainable by reason of the provisions of the Act, and it was stated on behalf of the defendants that the grant of a pension was a matter of bounty regulated by Statute, and must be made by the Minister for Defence, sanctioned by the Minister for Finance, and voted by the Oireachtas.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., Mr. Lavery, K.C., Mr. Charles S. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Gearoid O'Sullivan (instructed by Mr. Joseph H. Dixon) appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C., and The O'Rahilly (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the respondents.

DAIL EIREANN COURT JUDGESHIP.

VITAL DOCUMENTS.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Mr. William Black (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) applied ex parte on behalf of the Minister for Justice and the Minister for Finance, the defendants in an action in which Mr. Diarmuid O Cruadhlaoich, of 12 Charleville road, Dublin, is plaintiff, for a subpœna directing the Master of the High Court or the officer in charge of records to produce at the trial of the action for the purpose of being submitted in evidence, so far as they are relevant, records of the Dail Eireann Winding-Up Commission.

In the action the plaintiff claims arrears of salary which he states are due to him as Judge of the Supreme Court of the Irish Republic, otherwise known as the Dail Supreme Court, and to have an account taken of the arrears of such salary due to him from 1st August, 1922. He also asks for a number of declarations.

The defendants submit that the plaintiff is not entitled to the declarations or other relief claimed in the action.

After discussion, in which it was revealed that the documents were in control of the High Court, Mr. Justice Johnston said that he would give an order for the production at the trial of such of the documents as were necessary for the proper presentation of the defendants' case. He hoped, he said, that counsel for the defendants would make some arrangement to inspect the documents in the meanwhile, so as to be in a position to say on which documents they relied.

Mr. Black intimated that this would be done.

HOUSE PURCHASE DISPUTE.

CONDITIONS OF SALE.

(BEFORE MR JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Mrs. Madeline Carroll, of Monreith, 39 Jones's road, Dublin, brought an action against Mrs. Alicia Mary Little, of Belton House, South Circular road, Dublin, claiming specific performance of an agreement for the sale of Belton House, having a frontage of 95 feet. Alternatively she asked for a declaration that she was entitled to rescind the agreement, and for an order directing the defendant to return the deposit of part of the purchase money.

The defendant, in her defence, said that the plaintiff refused to complete the sale, and insisted on having assigned to her property not included in the contract. She counterclaimed that the deposit should be forfeited, and asked for an order for the payment by the plaintiff of the balance of the amount of the purchase money.

Mr. Binchy, K.C., and Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. Morgan Fottrell) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., and Mr. Bacon (instructed by Mr. James P. Kennedy) for the defendant.

The whole question, said Mr. Binchy, arose on the area and identity of the property. The plaintiff said that what she agreed to buy was Belton House and a frontage of 95 feet; that that was what was advertised in the announcement of the auction of the property, and that that was what was described in the particulars and conditions of sale; and the defendant said that that was not what the plaintiff bought at all, but that what the plaintiff bought was Belton House, with a strip of the ground on the eastern side cut away. That was to say, that the defendant claimed that she had reserved to herself a strip of ground which would lessen the frontage by about 32 feet; and which would make a very considerable difference, indeed, to the plaintiff in the value of the premises.

The case for the plaintiff had not concluded when the Court rose, and the further hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

At the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, the trial was resumed of Michael O'Gorman, a general carrier in Nenagh and the drummer in the fife and drum band in that town, who was charged with having had, on March 25 and April 6, carnal knowledge of a girl aged 14. He was also charged with indecent assault.

Mr. Joseph A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted; and Mr. Albert E. Wood, K.C., and Mr. T. Kingsmill Moore (instructed by Mr. J. J. O'Meara) defended.

The prisoner, in evidence, said that he had a wife and five children. He swore positively that he did not see the girl in question on either of the two dates mentioned, and, therefore, did not commit the alleged assault.

In cross-examination by Mr. McCarthy, he said that he did not know whether the girl was mistaken or wilfully told a lie when she said that she identified him.

Edward Christie, a labourer and a member of the baid, said that on the night of April 6 when the band had ceased playing he and the accused man had supper in a restaurant, and went home between 10.30 and 11 p.m.

Peter Crossan also gave evidence that he had supper in the restaurant with O'Gorman.

Cross-examined by Mr. McCarthy—He declined to make a statement to the Civic Guards, but had made a statement of his evidence to the solicitor for the defence.

Other witnesses corroborated.

Mrs. O'Gorman stated that she and her husband were in bed on the dates mentioned and at the times at which it was alleged that the occurrences took place. Her husband, she said, could not have been at the places mentioned at those particular times.

Counsel for the accused man and for the State having addressed the jury, Mr. Justice Hanna said that he would not have time to address the jury that night, and the further hearing was adjourned until 11 a.m. to-day.

MEATH HOUSING SCHEME.

EVIDENCE AT INQUIRY.

The inquiry into the proposed acquisition of plots by the Meath Board of Health was presided over by Mr. James P. Geraghty, Local Government Inspector, in Navan, when a large number of objectors, most of whom were legally represented, gave evidence of a formal nature. The inquiry was in connection with a scheme to erect 700 houses in the county.

Miss B. Duignan gave formal evidence of resolutions and representations.

Dr. T. F. O'Higgins, T.D., County M.O.H., said that, in his opinion, there was acute need for housing accommodation. There were 5,658 people living in two-roomed houses, 671 in one-roomed houses, or one-eleventh of the total population of Meath. He had safeguarded against unsanitary dwellings, as he specially recommended that these houses should be demolished as soon as vacated.

Dr. Eugene Byrne said he resided in Painstown dispensary district for 32 years, and knew the district well. There was a great necessity for a number of houses, not alone for labourers, but for small farmers. The Board's engineers also gave evidence.

THE CELTIC CONGRESS.

In the course of a letter, Mr. Brian MacGiolla Padraig, M.A., Hon. Secretary of the Celtic Congress, which opens in Dublin on Sunday next, states that he would be obliged if owners of motor cars who desire to facilitate the delegates would kindly let him know on what days and during what hours their cars will be available for transport purposes. As delegates will begin to arrive on Sunday morning (at the North Wall and Dun Laoghaire at 8 a.m.), an early and generous response will be appreciated.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

Dublin—Cattle, larger numbers and cheaper, Sheep and Lambs steady, Dairy Cattle weaker. Baconers in demand. York—Large show Irish Stores which sold up to £16 15s. Rubber firmer. Tin strong. Copper dearer. Wheat steady.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (METROPOLITAN).

	Numbers on sale this week as compared with last.	Corresponding weeks of 1932.	1933.
Beasts	2,117—increase 216	2,722	1,787
Sheep and lambs...	8,638—increase 694	11,839	6,287
Veal Calves...	25—increase 5	4	8

Arrivals to this market were larger, and proved too numerous for the trade practicable. In point of quality, the show was plain, but generally of useful class; but, with a curtailed trade in home and shipping directions, values all round experienced a set-back of fully 1s. per cwt. Even the small number of choice handy-weighted beasts were disappointingly bid. The fact was that there was more than a sufficiency of good trading bullocks and heifers available, and these apparently received preference at the relatively cheaper money position, as against what owners were asking for the nicer quality and meated animals. Local victuallers were early bidders, but at lower figures, as, owing to warm weather, their wants were smaller. Export trade is now down to small figures, and fewer licences were available here this week; but markets yonder offer little safe profitable margin or encouragement to exporters at present. With an increase in supplies and smaller volume of trade to cope with, salesmasters' more difficult position in price-getting can be imagined. Suffice to say they were considerably at the mercy of butchers and dealers in bargaining. Beef cows also a slow disappointing trade. Our German buyer, being in smaller want, and local and Northern buyers still poor bidders, a clearance was not possible around previous values. Bulls in short supply, and readily cleared. Prime heifers and bullocks, 20s. to 22s., extra around 23s. 6d. per cwt.; useful secondary sorts, 17s. to 19s.; others, around 16s. per cwt. Beef cows, young, 13s. to 15s.; seconds, 10s. to 12s.; aged, 7s. to 9s., and bulls, 13s. to 15s.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

Sheep market exhibited a more settled and healthier disposition, notwithstanding larger numbers to deal with. Home victuallers showed less hesitancy in their selections of wether and hogget sheep, particularly of the nicer weights, which occasionally realised more money. There was a decided improvement in demand for fat ewes, with values a good 2s. per head dearer, after which sheep sales eased, more especially hoggets for shipment, many of which were not even bid for. Lamb trade proved healthy throughout, with prices well maintained, and market cleared fairly early, except for some poor lots, which were not wanted at any price. Prime mutton, 7d. to 8d. per lb.; useful quality, 6d. to 6½d.; other classes, around 5½d.; and lambs, 14s. to 27s.; extra, 30s. to 33s.; outstanding, 37s. per head.

DAIRY CATTLE.

Much the same number of milch cattle on market—viz., around 290. Trade was decidedly worse, as fewer shippers put in an appearance, and home dairymen are apparently not much in want of fresh stockers. Prices in the circumstances were very in and out, and generally a good £1 per head lower over the wek. It was almost impossible to make a clearance, as only real outstanding beasts in milk were inquired for at the lower prices ruling, and many ordinary and doubtful animals had to be returned to owners. Best cows, £12 to £14; extra, £15 10s. per head; heifers, £12 to £14 10s.; useful sorts, £8 10s. to £10 10s.; others, £6 to £8.

PIGS.

The supply was slightly under last week, and totalled 1,089 exhibits. The gathering of both porkers and baconers was generally of good and useful class, and trade worked out satisfactorily on about previous basis of prices for all weights of bacon hogs. In dealing with light-weight porkers, market had a dragging tendency; but a tolerably satisfactory clearance was made at slightly less money. Sows rather scarce and steady, but slips and bonhams were again disappointingly bid for, except those in forward condition. Prime light-weight porkers, 50s. to 52s. per cwt.; medium bacon, 64s. to 68s.; heavier, 54s. to 56s.; sows, 30s. to 32s.; slips and bonhams, 14s. to 24s. per head.

BRISTOL.—There were seventy fresh Irish cattle and forty English. Moderate supply of beef, for which trade continued extremely bad; top for best only 6½d. per lb. Practically no inquiry for the few lots of store cattle. Two-year-old Aberdeen-Angus made £12 each, best yearlings up to £10, and milch cattle £13 to £16.

YORK.—Large show of Irish store cattle for end of season, including fine fleshy bullocks, which made to £16 15/-, heifers to £13 10/-, polls to £11 10/-. Small offer of dairy cows; best £25 10/-, useful £19. Few calving heifers; best £17 apiece. Few sheep and very slow trade.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—A fair supply, and owing to the sultry weather trade has become slow. Bacons quiet at schedule rates; cutters 10/6 to 11/-, and sows easier at 8/- per score dead-weight.

LIVERPOOL—American markets were closed yesterday (Independence Day), but Winnipeg finished better than expected, and forward deliveries of wheat here improved under limited offerings until a fair advance had been realised. Sellers later on showed less reserve, and prices receded almost to last night's level, stiffening again just on the finish. C.i.f. parcels unchanged to 3d. dearer. No. 2 Manitoba (Vancouver) due sold at 26/3, and Rosario Santa Fe 64lb. October at 21/- per quarter. TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN IDLE.

GAS STOCK LOWER.

Dublin Stock Market was very idle yesterday. Prices were fairly steady, but there is not much to be said for a market in which Guinness Units failed to quote, and business was done in only two of the leading Industrials.

Free State Funds were steady. Land Bonds lost 1s. 3d., and War Loan was 2s. 6d. to the good. Three per cent. Land Stock rose 1/16.

Bank of Ireland was 10s. higher, and Nationals threepence lower.

Great Northern Debs. lost 10s., and Southern Prefs. gained 5s.

Guinness Units were bid for at 111s. 3d., and not offered under 111s. 9d. The Pref. was unchanged. Cables issues, following London, were irregular. Alliance Gas lost 3s. 9d., on a small lot. Bolands Pref. was 1s. 3d. better, and Irish-American Oil Pref. gained threepence. Chocolate Debs., Burke Pref., Yam Seng Rubber and Irish Tanners Pref. were all unchanged.

Some Rubber Shares marked in the "other business done" list at rising prices. As for the market in the big Industrials, it almost faded away. Chemicals lost 4½d. and Vickers gained 9d.—that was practically the business of the day.

LONDON CHEERFUL.

GERMAN STOCKS ADVANCE.

A cheerful tendency developed in the London Stock markets yesterday, one of the principal factors being the agreement concerning the German debt, and substantial gains were scored by the Dawes and Young issues. British Government Stocks were helped by a good investment demand, which was fairly evenly distributed throughout the list. War Loan 3½ per cent., Victory Bonds, and 5 per cent. Conversions all put on ¼; 3½ per cent. Conversions improved ⅜, while gains of ⅛ were numerous. There was less business in India Stocks, and the 5½ per cent. lost the turn. In the Foreign market, German issues attracted most attention, and both the 7 per cent. Dawes and the 5½ per cent. Young Loans advanced to the extent of 3½, while Polish 7 per cent. Loan hardened a point. Otherwise there was not much activity in this section.

Among British Rails, less attention was paid to the wages question, and the signs of better traffic receipts had an encouraging effect, prices being ¼ to ½ higher in many cases. Transport "C" Stock showed a further advance early in the session, but profit-taking set in, and at the finish the price was about the same as the previous close. In the Foreign Railway market prices were occasionally ½ easier, but Canadian Pacifics rose 5/16.

Rubber shares were strong, and there was again a good inquiry for Tea shares. Oils were firm, with Anglo-Persians prominent. There was more business in the Mining market, and several Kaffirs improved. In the Industrial market Carreras were a strong feature on the news that Lord Reading has been appointed to the chairmanship, though the best prices of the day were not maintained. Dealings started in Criterion Restaurant Debs. at around 98½.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

CARRERAS ACTIVE.

Although a brighter tone developed in the Industrial market yesterday, there was not a great deal doing. A certain amount of profit-taking was in evidence during the afternoon, no doubt owing to the near approach of the carry-over, and this caused a rather irregular finish among Home descriptions.

The trans-Atlantic counters showed improvement in anticipation of better Wall Street advices.

Cables and Wireless stocks moved within narrow limits.

As regards Electrical Equipments, Generals were a firm spot, a moderate demand resulting in an improvement of 9d. to 42s. 9d.

An irregular tendency characterised Iron and Steel descriptions.

Apart from Imperial Airways, Aviation and kindred descriptions were inclined to dulness.

In the Motor group, Thomas Tilling continued on offer, further falling at one time to 4 11/32 and finishing with a loss of 1/16 at 4 7/16. Austins recovered ⅛ to 5⅛, but Standards receded 1/16 to 3 1/16.

Although moderate support was noticeable in places Breweries were subject to a little profit-taking.

Most of the interest in the Tobacco group centred around Carreras. The "A" shares opened at 7⅞, and, after a little profit-taking, eventually finished 1/16 to the good at 7 13/16. The "B" shares closed at 20s. Gallaher and Tobacco Securities Trust Ord. were slightly harder, but "Bats" and "Imps" remained on the dull side.

Rayon issues held steady, with scarcely any change in prices. Courtaulds were supported, but finished unaltered on balance at 50s. 10½d.

Little interest was taken in Textile descriptions, and the tendency still remained undecided.

Among Departmental Stores, support was forthcoming for Marks and Spencer, the Ord. shares being slightly better at 11 13/16. Woolworths were maintained.

Business was of a specialised nature in the miscellaneous group. British Oxygen were again prominent, a renewed demand on a market rather short of stock raising the price further to 69s. 10½d., eventually closing at 69s. 6d. The leading counters showed little change.

OIL SHARES QUIET.

Conditions in the Oil Share Market underwent little change yesterday, business being on extremely small scale all round. Although the open position remains small the approach of the carry-over naturally tends to make for slackness.

Dealers reported a quiet investment demand for certain of the leading counters, such as Anglo-Persians and Shells, but, while Burmahs registered an improvement, Anglo-Persian failed to hold an initial gain.

RUBBERS BUOYANT.

Rubber shares yesterday continued the advance of the previous day, and there was a general appreciation throughout the list under the influence of the strength of the commodity, which changed hands up to 7⅛d. for spot and up to 7⅜d. for October-December delivery, with signs that buying orders were not completed. Malacca advanced 1s. 9d., F.M.S. Plantations put on 1s. 6d., Jugra Land rose the level shilling, and Batu Tiga, Anglo-Malay, General Ceylon, Golden Hope, Highlands, Kuala Lumpur, United Sua Betong and Vallambrosa were all 6d. or 7½d. to the good. Rubber Trusts at 34s. 7½d. put on 4½d. and Tandjong added 9d. Anglo-Dutch hardened the turn and Florin shares were generally harder. Yam Sengs were maintained at 2s. 9d.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET.

The American market in Shorter's Court last evening experienced a little more activity than of late, prices advancing on New York bidding. Steels gained ½ to 38½, Radios ¼ to 25⅜. Hydros improved to 5 1/16. "Canadas" closed firm at 14 1/16.

Home industrials generally showed no material alteration, dealers soon dispersing.

COMPANY MEETING.

SCRIBBANS AND COMPANY.

POLICY OF STEADY EXPANSION.

COMPANY FOR THE FREE STATE.

CHANGE IN DEFERRED SHARES.

The seventh annual general meeting of Scribbans and Company, Ltd., was held yesterday at the Hotel Metropole, London, W.C.

Mr. Philip E. Hill (the chairman) said:—Ladies and gentlemen, the profits for the year of £226,162 13s. 3d. are some £3,500 in excess of those of the previous year and equivalent to nearly ½ per cent. on our capital. At our last meeting I was aware that we had a very strenuous time in front of us. Some of our competitors had gone in for further price-cutting, coupled with an expansive advertising programme, and, with this in mind, I was very diffident in talking of the future of the business, but I am glad to-day to tell you that we have emerged from the struggle with increased profits and a generally improved position. For seven years we have pursued a policy of steady expansion, coupled with a conservative distribution of profits, with the result that to-day we stand possessed of a very much improved equipment in the shape of factories and plant, and it is the intention of the board to pursue this policy. As you are aware, practically the whole of our output is sold to the grocery and provision trade, and you will, no doubt, have seen that the accounts of some of the companies engaged in this business published in the earlier part of the year show diminished profits, but those recently announced show better figures. I am convinced that such a vital portion of the country's trade as the grocery and provision business must ultimately share in the general improvement, and not until then can we hope to secure for ourselves the share of profits to which our products and organisation undoubtedly entitle us, but I feel confident that they will ultimately be obtained.

FREE STATE EXTENSION.

As stated at our last meeting, the assets in our balance sheet are more than conservatively valued. We are about to form a limited liability company in the Irish Free State to carry on our Irish business, which, I am pleased to say, continues to show satisfactory expansion. As you will have seen from the notices accompanying the report and accounts, we have convened the necessary meetings to convert the existing Deferred shares of 1s. each into Deferred shares of 5s. each, as the Board are satisfied that a 5s. share is much more popular with the investing public.

The report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

At subsequent meetings the necessary resolutions were passed to give effect to the proposals to consolidate the 1s. Deferred shares into shares of the denomination of 5s.

LONDON MINING MARKET QUIET.

BETTER TONE IN GOLD SHARES.

The somewhat better tendency which developed in the Mining market in the later dealings on Wednesday was fairly well maintained yesterday. Kaffirs generally gave a good account of themselves, though trading was on a very modest scale. Advices from Johannesburg were of a more cheering character, and there is no doubt that with the elimination of much of the weak bull element here the market has become much healthier.

There was very little life in the Rhodesian department, but Rhodesian Corporation were somewhat depressed on the proposal put forward for the increase of capital.

At one time the price of Tin rose to £232 per ton, but closed below the overnight's level. The Share market, however, gave a better account of itself, buying of good-class descriptions being in evidence.

Australians were being steadily absorbed, but there was no sensational improvements. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

The Irish Aluminium Company, Ltd.

The preliminary notice of the Irish Aluminium Company appears in this issue, and the full prospectus will be published on Monday. The capital of this promising undertaking is £20,000, which will be offered in the form of 10,000 6½ per cent. Preference shares of £1, and 10,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each. The payments on the shares are spread over convenient periods till January 14, 1935, and the first dividend on the Preference shares is payable on June 1, 1935, calculated, of course, from the dates of payment of instalments. The statutory relief of 20 per cent. of income tax on the dividends will be given as in the case of the Free State industrial undertakings which conforms with the Finance Minister's requirements. A strong board of directors has been formed, and the technical side is well represented. The factory is to be set up at Nenagh, and it is understood that the company have received estimates for their plant amounting to £7,000. The plant includes all the latest in modern machinery for the production of aluminium ware, and includes a special plant for the chromium plating of aluminium articles. It is expected that the contract for the delivery of the plant will be placed during this month. An initial staff of young Irishmen is being trained in England for the work of the factory, which will ultimately employ 120 hands. The promoters are applying for £10,000 in shares, and these will be allotted in full. The subscription list will open on Monday, and intending applicants may obtain forms from the Munster and Leinster Bank and branches, from the Irish Industrial Credit Company, and from all stockbrokers and banks.

National Bank.

The next half-yearly general meeting of the proprietors will be held at the Office of the Bank, No. 34 College Green, Dublin, on Thursday, 26th July, at noon. At this meeting the directors will submit their report and balance sheet for the half-year to 30th June, 1934. Since the last half-yearly meeting, held in Dublin on 27th July, 1933, the directors have co-opted to the Board Michael James Babington Smith, Esq., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. J. B. Meers. This appointment will be submitted for confirmation at the meeting. The books of the Bank for the registration of transfer deeds (both in London and Dublin) will be closed on Monday, 9th July, and will so remain until after Saturday, 21st.

Argentine Traffics.

As from Wednesday next—the first week of the new financial year—the Argentine railway companies will show their weekly traffic receipts converted at the average rate of exchange for the week. The weekly traffics have previously been converted at the par rate of exchange. The new method will result in traffics showing considerable reductions, although actually it will make no difference to the companies' accountancy at the end of the next financial year. A notice about the proposed alteration will be posted in the market this morning.

THE MONEY MARKET

BANK BUYING GOLD.

The price of gold was yesterday fixed 2d. higher at 137s. 7d. per ounce fine. About £390,000 was in the market and was taken by the usual buyers.

There was again a fair demand for money in connection with the repayment of a small amount to the Bank of England. Borrowers, however, were usually able to obtain accommodation until to-day at ¾ p.c.

In the Discount market three months' fine bills were quoted ⅞ to 15/16 p.c., and the new Treasuries were around 11/16 p.c.

The Bank of England announced the purchase of £61,000 in bar gold.

Silver rose 1/16d. on American speculative purchases to 20⅞d. per ounce for spot and 21d. for forward delivery.

Sterling did not maintain entire the recovery made earlier this week in the foreign exchange market dealings yesterday. The pound was rather offered both from Paris and New York, and rates moved against London almost through the day, closing rates being only a little above the low levels for the day. No attempt was made by the London control to prevent the renewed decline in sterling. The German mark attracted more interest. The currency was in great demand, following the favourable outcome of the debt negotiations, and sterling exchange on Berlin declined by about 5 pfennig.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Saint Mary's Abbey : Irish Aviation Day : M. Alphand.
Sir Barry Jackson : King's Ale.

M. Alphand.

Talking to Mrs. Michael Fitzgerald, of Strokestown, yesterday, I heard that her father and mother, Monsieur and Madame Alphand, intend, if possible, to be in Ireland for the Horse Show. It is now two years since the popular French Minister took up his Ministerial post in Moscow, and, though he often makes the trip to Paris, he has has not since re-visited this country.

Mrs. Fitzgerald tells me that her father likes Moscow very much. There is a very large diplomatic circle in Moscow, and in consequence there is a great deal of social activity. Mrs. Fitzgerald has just returned from Paris, where she has been with her father and mother, who were on one of their periodical visits to the French capital. Three days and two nights in the train bring them there from Moscow.

Mrs. Fitzgerald enjoys living in Roscommon, although it is so far away from her people. She plays golf at Rosses Point, and is looking forward to hunting next season.

King's Ale.

It would seem that this matter of "King's Ale" is one of absorbing interest to Dubliners. I gave a list yesterday of those who have bottles in their possession, and now Mr. Grattan, of Bray, tells me that he, too, has one, and would be pleased to get in touch with other owners. He tells me that so far back as 1921 a bottle of this ale was sold for £94 in Kent, and wonders how high the present value of the bottles stand. I do not like the look of all this! There was Mr. Findlater, quietly attached to his original five bottles, keeping them as one keeps a favourite pipe. Then the Australians came along, indicating that the Edwardian brew had found its way to the Antipodes. Now bottles are springing up all over the world, the original five become magnified to eight, and soon we probably shall find somebody offering a couple of dozen at £94 apiece! I should advise all owners to retain their bottles until the Horse Show, when they will be able to command a more extensive market.

Sir Barry Jackson.

I hear that Sir Barry Jackson is not, after all, to retire completely from the direction of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre. For a time it was feared that the twenty-one years' association with that fine venture was to come to an end very soon, but at a meeting held on Saturday last it was announced that this was not to be the case. In future Sir Barry will share not only in the direction of the theatre, but take responsibility for half any loss that may be incurred in the productions. There seems just a chance that Brinsley MacNamara's fine play, "Margaret Gillan," will be presented at the Birmingham Repertory Theatre next season. Sir Barry Jackson has a high opinion of the play, and to have been selected by such an experienced man of the theatre as Sir Barry for the Casement Prize of the Irish Academy of Letters is commendation, indeed. Not only in England, but also in the United States, the opinion of Sir Barry Jackson will carry considerable weight, so that it is quite on the cards that "Margaret Gillan" will be produced in America before the end of the year. It would almost certainly have been one of the plays staged in America by the Abbey Company during the forthcoming tour, but American interest in the play suggests early production by an American company.

Irish Aviation Day.

Within the next few weeks an Irish aviation day will be held in the Phœnix Park. There are no fewer than five separate committees responsible for the organisation of the event, so that obviously nothing is being left to chance. An extremely interesting programme has been arranged, and it is possible that a number of German airmen may come over in order to take part in it. The usual aerobatics and squadron exercises will be performed by the Air Corps. Anyone who has ever seen a display of massed flying will admit that this is one of the most thrilling spectacles that the Machine Age has given us. There will be a mimic battle—anti-aircraft and machine guns versus high and low flying aeroplanes.

When the ordinary events have been disposed of, a number of interesting "one-man shows" will be staged. Lieutenant Tyson has promised to give a display of solo "air-stunting," and, if the hopes of the organisers are fulfilled, a German airman will go up later in competition with him. An added attraction will be the presence of a member of Sir Alan Cobham's circus, who will give an exhibition of parachute jumping. It is also possible that Mr. Gilmore will make descents at the same time.

Gliding.

In recent years the sport of gliding has been gaining greatly in popularity, due to its comparatively small cost, and to the fact that it requires no very spacious aerodromes. Here, again, it may be possible to obtain a German gliding expert to give a display. The newly-formed Dublin Gliding Club are also being approached, in the hope that Mr. Quirk will consent to fly as well. A comparison of the two techniques should prove interesting. An unusual event in displays of this nature will be an air race. If a good entry can be obtained it should be the high light of the day.

I wonder how many people have seen the Hon. A. E. Guinness's Autogiro in its numerous trips over Dublin? If they are anxious to see this strange machine at closer quarters, they will probably have the opportunity of doing so in the Park, as one of the organising committees are doing all they can to secure its attendance. As a final attraction Colonel Fitzmaurice's Australian flight 'plane also may be on view. Naturally enough, some of the events are not, as yet, quite definitely arranged, though it is certain that the eventual programme will be one of the most thrilling, as well as one of the most interesting, ever staged in Dublin.

Saint Mary's Abbey.

The recent discovery, in Swift's row, of human skulls and pottery—supposed to be from the collection of Dr. Frazer, archæologist—again draws my attention to the site of Saint Mary's Abbey, which is perpetuated only in the name of a street leading to the Fish Market! Often I have wondered why nothing ever was done to preserve some remaining remnant of the fabric of the old establishment, which carried a history of stirring events from the ninth century down to the occasion when Lord Thomas Fitzgerald—"Silken Thomas"—acting upon the false report of his father's arrest in London, flung down the Sword of State in the Chapter House, renounced his allegiance and became an outlaw—actions which eventually cost him his life. The old Chapter House was in a fair state of preservation within recent years; but it, like the original foundations, now is merged in warehouse buildings around Meetinghouse lane. St. Mary's, founded by the Benedictine Order and transferred to the Cistercians, is shown on Speed's Map of Dublin (1610) as occupying all the lands adjoining the north-east banks of the Liffey; but he who would now trace the remains of the Abbey must needs be a very keen antiquary. The site was located and carefully mapped out during the past century by a committee of experts sponsored by the Irish Times—their report is extant—and perhaps at some future time, when the surrounding properties become uninhabitable, the foundations will be brought to light.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have followed with deep interest the correspondence in your columns on the new Criminal Law Amendment Bill, and it appears to me that most of your correspondents have failed to see the wood for the trees. For the provisions which raise the age of consent, and prescribe severe penalties for outrages against idiot girls, I have nothing but approval. On the eminently debatable point of contraceptives I prefer to remain silent. What interests me, in fact, is not the bill itself, but the class of legislation of which it is a type, and the general condition of the country which, rightly or wrongly, has called such legislation into being.

The fact is, sir, that the last ten years have been marked not only by an increasingly stringent enforcement of the laws against sexual immorality, but by a stern and, I think, engineered mobilisation of public opinion against it. What is the result? The Churches, social workers and the law agree that sexual vice, alike in its most noxious and in its normal forms, has gained an unprecedented sway within those ten years. Illegitimate births among the poorer sections of the populace are far more common than they used to be; cases of concealment of birth are becoming a regular feature of the law reports; the awful crime of infanticide is tragically prevalent. Can we resist the conclusion that something more than coincidence is at work? There are people who argue that the alarming spread of the liquor habit among American boys and girls had nothing to do with prohibition; but nobody pays any attention to them. Is it not at least a fair assumption that our efforts to impose virtue by Act of Parliament is producing exactly the same effect as prohibition in America—that our young people, constrained by the relentless pressure of our laws and by the cruelty of our public attitude towards sexual sinners, are being driven into a mood of defiance which eventually may mean in Ireland the abandonment of all restraint, the collapse of all law and all morality?

I do not suggest for an instant that sin should go unpunished, but I do suggest that the law should hesitate before it assumes the powers which are more properly wielded by the Church and by the conscience. My countrymen have still the grace to be ashamed of their sins; but, as J. M. Synge pointed out thirty years ago in a play which has given widespread offence because of its essential truth, we have a lamentable inclination to glory in our crimes against the law. This is precisely what I fear will happen in Ireland if our "blue laws" attempt to trespass any further on the sexual field: our young people will begin to glory in the commission of sexual sins if once they are elevated to the dignity of crimes. That this perverted view of human conduct really exists among us is clear from a barbarous case recently reported in your columns and mentioned in your leading article on the Criminal Law Amendment Bill.

Law, after all, is merely a mirror of public sentiment, and, if it is a fact that the severity of our Government's outlook upon immorality has been largely responsible for its increase, we must look for the primal cause in public sentiment. One of the chief and saddest characteristics of our people to-day is its lack of charity, the virtue which lies at the basis of all Christian conduct. We are loud-voiced and cruel in our condemnation of the lapses of others. A whole village in the West will turn its back on a young girl who is suspected of unchastity. Not all of those who condemn are hypocrites; many of them are people of unblemished life, but all alike develop a harshness and bitterness of judgment which, I venture to suggest, is more destructive of the national character than any amount of unchastity. The effect of this cruel judgment on the minds of the young must be damning. Shame is a noble sentiment, but terror is debasing and dehumanising. Conscious that she is regarded as outlaw, the young girl who has sinned once and been found out, or has sinned and fears that she must be suspected, grows defiant through panic, loses all belief in the kindness of humanity, broods, and does one of three things—seeks sanctuary in the Union, kills her baby, or runs away from home to the city streets.

My remarks, sir, are disjointed, but the thesis which I would propound is as follows: (1) That the growth of vice among our young people is largely due to the cruelty and lack of charity among their elders towards any departure from the strict law of chastity; (2) that if this cruelty and lack of charity are given the approval of the law, sin will be exalted into crime, and may become a matter of pride, and (3) that the only remedy against the growth of licence is the growth of a new spirit of tolerance among the people of Ireland.

I might add a fourth consideration—that the lives of the young Irish countryman and countrywoman are so drab, so lacking in colour and gaiety, as to drive them headlong into vice; but I have already trespassed too far upon your space.—Yours, etc.,

"VATIDICUS."

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND APPEALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Clothing Department of the British Legion are in urgent need of clothing for men, women and children, and the Committee make this appeal to all who may be in a position to help.

Recent issues from the Clothing Department have depleted their stock, and there are still many deserving people who are in need of clothes. Will all those who have clothing which they do not require kindly send a postcard to the undermentioned address, when arrangements will be made to have it collected?—Yours, etc.,

Organising Secretary, British Legion.

THE GAELIC HARP

COMING BACK TO POPULARITY.

MAY BE MADE IN IRELAND.

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE Gaelic harp, or clarsach, may once again sound in its native Ireland, where it has been of late so little heard. For many years now virtually the only harp notes have come from a few of the great orchestral double-action instruments, the Grecian or Gothic harps. Now the ancient clarsach, which is known only as the State emblem of Saorstat Eireann, may come into its own again as the favourite instrument of the people, accompanying their songs, playing for their dances.

The incursions of modern instruments and modern music considered apart, clarsach-playing has been hampered in the Free State within the past two or three generations by the fact that there is not in this country a man who can make a clarsach. The only person in Ireland who has made an Irish harp in recent years is a Belfastman.

A SCOTTISH MAKER.

New hopes have been aroused, however, by the arrival in Dublin this week of a clarsach-maker who has been largely responsible for the revival of the clarsach's popularity in Scotland. He is Mr. H. B. Briggs, of Glasgow.

He has brought with him four clarsachs which he has made himself. They are of his own "Dalriada" design, and have a range of thirty-one full tones. They are but little different from the old "Brian Boru" harps. Three of them are on show in a Grafton street shop window.

Yesterday an Irish Times reporter heard the clear, sweet notes of a clarsach played by Miss T. MacCormac, of Dublin. The impression was delightful as her fingers touched the strings in old Irish folk-melodies. The tone strength was wonderfully varied, the quality excellent, and the lingering notes had an appeal that was as individual as it was pleasant.

EASY TO PLAY.

"The clarsach is so easy to play," said Miss MacCormac. "I know it would be popular everywhere to-day if musical people only knew more of it. Now that clarsach-making has restarted. I have no doubt that the national spirit will help in restoring the Irish national instrument to its former place."

"The clarsach," Mr. Briggs said, "came to Scotland from Ireland, perhaps a thousand years ago. It was for centuries regarded in Scotland as the national instrument, and to-day many Scottish gaels would deny its Irish origin. When the bagpipes came, however, the piper gradually superseded the harpist in the courts of the Highland chieftains. Yet the clarsach tradition never completely died out.

"About two years ago there was a great revival of interest in the clarsach among Scottish gaels. A society was formed to promote its playing and to 'interest all music-lovers in this most fascinating and historic instrument.' The Clarsach Society (Comunn na Clarsaich) now has almost 300 members, and the clarsach-making industry has been revived after a long interval. Men and women are learning to play, and, particularly in the rural districts, there is a great demand for the services of the few teachers available.

AT THE CELTIC CONGRESS.

"Now a number of prominent people in Dublin and other parts of Ireland have become interested. There may be important developments arising out of the Celtic Congress, which begins here on Sunday next. The delegates, for instance, will hear the clarsach played at the garden party on the 10th, by the desire of their host, Mr. Justice Meredith, who is especially interested."

Mr. Briggs concluded by stating that his clarsachs had to pay an Imperial preference import duty of over 20 per cent. on entry from Scotland, and remarked that if there was a desire to revive Clarsach-making in the Free State he would be glad to teach an Irish apprentice.

ROYAL DRUMMOND INSTITUTE.

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES.

Yesterday was prize-giving day at the Bray Royal Drummond Institution for Orphan Daughters of Soldiers. Many friends and supporters of the institution attended, including Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. A. Robinson, the Rev. K. Brady, C.C.; Major and Mrs Howes, Miss Brown, Miss MacAllister, Miss Gahan, the Misses Allen, Miss Mooney, the Misses MacAllister.

Prizes were distributed for many kinds of endeavour, including successes in domestic science under the Bray Vocational Educational Committee, needlework, domestic work, lessons, the most willing and useful helpers, knitting, laundry and general improvement. In the prize list after each girl's name was put the title of her father's regiment. These included the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, Royal Garrison Artillery, Irish Guards, Royal Irish Regiment, Leinster Regiment, the R.F.A., R.D.F. Labour Corps and the Royal Artillery.

The prize-giving was preceded by a pupils' entertainment of choral singing, recitations, acting and dancing, in which all the performers showed understanding and skill of high order, much to the credit of their instructress and Miss MacAllister, the matron. Mrs. James Robinson, who distributed the prizes, including consolation prizes presented by the secretary, Major W. R. Howes, was presented with a beautiful bouquet by one of the tiniest of the children.

Mr. J. G. Perry returned thanks to Mrs. Robinson, and congratulated the staff on the excellent results achieved in their training of the girls.

Mr. A. Robinson thanked the girls for their entertainment and for the beautiful bouquet given to his mother, who, he said, had had great pleasure in attending.

THE UNIVERSITY OF DUBLIN.

CONFERRING OF DEGREES.

EMINENT RECIPIENTS.

THE Senate met in the Theatre of Trinity College yesterday for the purpose of conferring honorary and other degrees. The Caput consisted of the Chancellor (the Right Hon. the Earl of Iveagh, C.B., LL.D.), the Provost and the Senior Master Non-Regent (John Fraser, F.T.C.D.).

A large gathering of graduates, undergraduates and friends assembled in the hall in view of the fact that honorary degrees were to be conferred on several eminent and distinguished men.

Among the members of the Senate present were:—The Rev. W. R. W. Roberts, S.F.,T.C.D. (Vice-Provost); M. W. J. Fry, S.F.,T.C.D (Senior Lecturer); William Kennedy, S.F.,T.C.D. (Senior Proctor); W. A. Goligher, F.,T.C.D. (Registrar); Sir Robert Tate, F.,T.C.D. (Public Orator); J. M. Henry, F.,T.C.D.; W. F. Starkie, F.,T.C.D.; K. C. Bailey, F.,T.C.D. (Junior Dean); A. J. McConnell, F.,T.C.D. (Junior Proctor); G. A. Duncan, F.,T.C.D.; T. S. Broderick, F.,T.C.D.; the Regius Professors T. Gillman Moorhead and Sir Arthur Ball, Bart.; Professors A. F. Dixon, H. H. Dixon, Canon J. E. L. Oulton, E. A. Werner, John Purser, L. B. Smyth and Canon Jourdan; also Dr. Ella G. Webb, J. H. Shaw, M.A. (Assistant Registrar); G. H. P. Hewson, Mus.D. (organist); Miss Olive Purser, M.A.; A. Denne Bolton, LL.D., and C. B. Kennedy, M.A. (accountant).

The Public Orator, amidst loud and prolonged applause, introduced the recipients of honorary degrees in the customary Latin speeches, summarised as follows:—

Sc.D.

D'Arcy Wentworth Thompson.

Dr. D'Arcy Wentworth Thompson, Professor of Natural History in the University of St. Andrews, has attained scarcely less eminence in the field of Letters than in that of Science: doctrinae in regionibus diversissimis praeclare versatus est. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society, is the author of a profound work on Growth and Form, has for many years been scientific member of the Fishery Board for Scotland, and has been British delegate to several important conferences dealing with matters of that nature. Moreover, he has been President of the Classical Association, has published an excellent and instructive Glossary of Greek birds: de avibus quarum nomina apud scriptores Graecos inveniuntur egregie disputavit, and was entrusted with the rendering into English of the Historia Animalium in the Oxford Translation of Aristotle. These latter facts are particularly interesting to us, for his father, the well-known Professor of Greek in Queen's College, Galway, is affectionately remembered here. That memory claims for him our goodwill; his own services to learning claim our Academic recognition.

LITT.D.

The Most Rev. Charles F. D'Arcy.

The Most Reverend Charles Frederick D'Arcy, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, enjoys a distinction which must constitute something very like an ecclesiastical record in that he has presided over no fewer than five dioceses in succession: Episcoporum in ordine augusto vix unum hoc viro magis episcopalem inveneris, qui quinque deinceps dioeceses pari fidelitate et successu administravit. He was first Science Scholar of his year, and no one has ever more worthily earned the proud title of Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin: inter scientiarum studiosos primus renuntiatus palmam prae ceteris insignem reportavit. He has been Robertson Lecturer in Glasgow, twice Donnellan Lecturer, and on several occasions select preacher before most of our great Universities. His philosophical and theological works are so numerous and so well known that it would be almost impossible, and quite superfluous, to enumerate them in detail. Suffice it to say that the general trend of his writings has been to show that the discoveries of modern science do but enhance our conception of God and confirm our faith. The Public Orator fitly described the Primate as virum et ob ingenii praestantiam admirandum et ob sanctitatem vitae colendum.

LITT.D.

Jeremiah Denis Matthias Ford.

Dr. Jeremiah Denis Matthias Ford: vir de quo Cantabrigia Transatlantica iure optimo se iactat: is Professor of French and Spanish at Harvard, and has been Chairman of the Department of Romance Languages in that University since 1911. He is an honorary Docteur ès Lettres of Toulouse, a corresponding member of the Academies of Madrid and Barcelona, and has held almost every distinguished office connected with the study of his subject in America: Si opera omnia quibus hic sibi gloriam peperit, si munera speciosa quae procuravit fusius enarrare vellem, deficeret mihi, credo, dies. He has published many editions of Spanish and Italian classics, and of no less wide repute are his Spanish Grammars and his Exercises in Spanish Composition: orationis Hispanae leges, grammaticae Hispanae principia libris eximiis exposuit. Indeed, Dr. Ford has done as much as any living man to promote the study of Spanish among the English-speaking peoples. By universal consent our highest honours are due to him.

LITT.D.

Robert Mitchell Henry.

The University of Dublin, said the Public Orator, has no greater happiness than to bestow her Honorary Degree upon a representative of another Irish seat of learning: nunquam impensius gaudemus quam cum virum primarium in familiam Matris nostrae inducentes e sororibus Hibernicis unam laetitiae nostrae in communionem vocamus. It, therefore, gave him the greatest pleasure to present Dr. Robert Mitchell Henry, Professor of Latin in the Queen's University of Belfast. Dr. Henry graduated with a First Class in Classics in the University of London and in the Royal University of Ireland, where he gained every possible honour. He has always been one of the foremost champions of the study of Greek and Latin, and has several times been President of the Classical Association of this country. His services to Livy and his articles in the Classical Review are familiar to us; scarcely less notable is his edition of the Irish Corpus Astronomiae, published in collaboration with the late Dr. F. W. O'Connell; while to our political literature he has contributed the "Evolution of Sinn Fein," a book remarkable for its candour and originality: quo in libro vix fieri potest quin dubites utrum animi candorem an materiae scientiam an iudicii sanitatem magis mireris. Such a multiplicity of achievement demands a multiplicity of applause.

LITT.D.

William David Ross.

Dr. William David Ross, who is a Fellow of the British Academy, came up from Edinburgh University to Balliol College, Oxford. He afterwards became a Fellow, and more recently an Honorary Fellow, of Merton. In 1902 he was elected Fellow of Oriel, and has been Provost of that College for the last five years. He was editor of the Oxford Translation of Aristotle, has himself translated Aristotle's Ethics and Metaphysics, and has published a learned edition of the last-named work as well as of the Metaphysics of Theophrastus. In one of his latest books he draws a subtle and interesting distinction between the Right and the Good: inter Bonum et Rectum quid intersit subtiliter explicare callet. But, said the Public Orator, in honouring Dr. Ross, Trinity College, Dublin, admits no such distinction. To honour him is for us in a special sense both right and good, because the College over which he presides has extended to us the honour of one of those friendly alliances now so universally existing between the various Colleges of Oxford and Cambridge: nos ei palmam nostram deferre et rectum et bonum esse praeter ceteros ideo iudicamus quod Collegio nobiscum artissimis hospitii vinculis consociato iam quinquennium summa cum laude praesedit. It is as a brother that Dr. Ross is welcomed here.

LL.D.

The Right Hon. Edward F. L. Wood, Viscount Halifax.

The Right Honourable Edward Frederick Lindley Wood, third Viscount Halifax, recently succeeded his father, the venerable ex-President of the English Church Union. From Eton he went up to Christ Church, Oxford, of which he is now an Honorary Fellow. He is also a Fellow of All Souls. His political career embraces the important offices of Minister of Agriculture and President of the Board of Education; he is, however, best known for his work in India during his five years' tenure of the Viceroyalty: id vero omnium consensu maximum, in Imperio nostro Indico Regis vicarium egregium per annos quinque exstitisse. But we may be sure that no honour ever pleased him better than his election to the Chancellorship of his old University: dignitas gratior nunquam est oblata quam cum Oxoniensium suffragiis electus Cancellarii in sellam escendit. The visit of the joint author of "The Great Opportunity" is for the University of Dublin a great opportunity, indeed, and she salutes the Chancellor of Oxford with enthusiastic plaudits.

ON THE WIRELESS

Daily Programme Review.

DUBLIN: Programme of Irish Music, 8.45 to 9.15.

BELFAST: Operatic Programme, 8.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Play, "Beauty and the Jacobin." 9.25.

NORTH REGIONAL: Chamber Music, 9.

MIDLAND REGIONAL: Three Short Plays, 8.

STRASBOURG: Gala Concert from Vichy, 8.30.

ROME: Operetta, "The Geisha" (Jones), 8.45.

THE operatic programme from Belfast comprises excerpts from "Masaniello," an opera by the French composer, Auber. Among his serious operas, "Masaniello," more than any other, is said to have contributed to the composer's European reputation. The full title of the opera is "La Muette de Portici," but in England, commonly called after its chief hero, Masaniello. It was composed some twenty-eight years before the more familiar "Manon Lescaut." The soloists are Anna Reid (soprano), James Johnston (tenor), and Hooten Mitchell (baritone), supported by the Belfast Wireless Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by E. Godfrey Brown.

The third Test match starts to-day at Old Trafford, Manchester, and will be described, as usual, by Howard Marshall at the lunch and tea intervals and at the close of play. He may also speak during the afternoon programmes while play is in progress (Daventry).

Play in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships, now drawing to a close, will be described this afternoon by Colonel R. H. Brand and Captain H. B. T. Wakelam at intervals between 2 and 6 on Daventry and all other National wave lengths.

It is a pity that the recital of songs by Roger Quilter, with the composer at the piano, is confined to one wave-length (London Regional, 8). With a choice of two or more, one is sure of getting a good reception. Gwen Knight (soprano) and Mark Raphael (baritone) are the vocalists who will be heard in this programme of Quilter's lovely songs, comprising musical settings to words by Shakespeare, R. L. Stevenson, Herrick, James Stevens and others. Unfortunately, that delicate early song of his—"Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal"—is not included in the programme.

Quite possibly a number of grown-ups will unashamedly listen to the Scottish Children's Hour this afternoon, when J. J. Bell, the author of "Wee MacGregor," will give a description of his boyhood. Those of us who have read this charming little book, and remember Wee MacGregor standing at the window looking out, with face pressed close against the glass, whilst his mother scolded him, loved him all the more when he turned round with a lump of putty on his nose. One cannot help hoping that the creator of this lovable little character was himself a pickle when he was Wee MacGregor's age.

On the unanimous recommendation of the University Council, the Board of Trinity College has appointed Dr. Frances Elizabeth Moran, M.A., to the Professorship of Laws. Dr. Moran graduated in Trinity College in 1915 with a Senior Moderatorship (Gold Medal) in Modern Languages (English and French). At the LL.B. and LL.D. examinations she obtained first place. At the Continuous Course examinations, King's Inns, she won the Victoria Prize and first place in Junior and Senior years. She has also won the John Brooke Scholarship. Dr. Moran was called to the Irish Bar in 1924. In 1925 she was elected by examination to the Reid Professorship of Law in Trinity College; in 1932 she was appointed Acting Professor of Personal Property in the King's Inns during Hilary and Easter Sessions, and in the same year was appointed Professor of Equity, Pleading and Practice for a term of three years.

Dr. Moran has the distinction of being the first woman to be elected by the Board to a Professorship.

Make Scotland Yours this Year

Scotland has the right sort of history, the sort that leaves behind it picturesque abbeys and castles, places which give you a much more vivid sight of the past than the most ambitious of Hollywood's "historical" films—ancient villages and bridges and strongholds that make you live through Scott's romances all over again. Scenes of natural beauty too—a stream splashing down through rocks and bracken or a grove of silver birches at the foot of a mountain—will quicken your heart to the lilt of Burns' sweet songs.

In many parts of Scotland you can get Holiday Contract Tickets. These entitle you to travel anywhere you like by any train in certain large areas. The price is as low as 7s. 6d. a week.

HOLIDAY TICKETS: This year Holiday Return Tickets, offering very generous concessions, will again be issued. Tourist Tickets available for three months — issued May to October.

ARMY BILL AMENDMENT REJECTED BY DAIL.

THE DISMISSAL OF MEN IN THE RESERVE.

DEPUTY'S SHARP RETORT TO MINISTER.

THE Dail yesterday disagreed with the Senate's amendment to the Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) (No. 2) Bill, limiting the lifetime of the bill to November 30 next.

Replying to Mr. Mulcahy, who raised the question of the discharge of reservists, the Minister for Defence denied that men were sent out because of representations made by Fianna Fail clubs. He admitted, however, that a number of reservists had been discharged because they were members of the Blue Shirt organisation.

Mr. Dillon, who followed Mr. Aiken, said that the Minister had proclaimed himself a liar, because he now admitted that he had discharged men because they belonged to the League of Youth, although he had denied it on previous occasions.

The House afterwards passed the second reading of the Housing (Financial and Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill, and adjourned until July 18.

PRESIDENT AND ADJOURNMENT.

When outlining the order of business of the day President DE VALERA intimated that when the business on the paper was concluded the Dail would adjourn until 18th July.

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) asked if it were the intention of the President to introduce sixteen new bills between now and the time the House rose for the recess.

President DE VALERA said that the party Whips had been in communication about that matter.

Mr. DILLON protested against sixteen bills being rushed through in such short space.

President DE VALERA said there was no limitation to the period for the discussion of these bills.

NEW BILLS.

A first reading was given to the Agricultural Co-operative Societies (Debentures) Bill, 1934; the Dairy Produce (Amendment) Bill, 1934, and the Creamery (Amendment) Bill, 1934, the second stages of which were fixed for July 18th.

Mr. DILLON said that he understood that eighteen bills were fixed for second reading on the same date. That would mean that the Dail would sit until November.

Mr. LEMASS (Minister for Industry and Commerce) moved the first reading of the Shannon Fisheries Bill, and asked that the second reading be taken on the 18th inst., and this was agreed to.

DEFENCE FORCES.

THE DISCHARGE OF RESERVISTS.

The House proceeded to consider the Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) (No. 2) Bill, which had been sent back from the Senate with an amendment limiting the lifetime of the bill to the 30th day of November, 1934.

The MINISTER FOR DEFENCE (Mr. Aiken) moved that the Dail disagree with the amendment.

Mr. MULCAHY (U.I., North Dublin) said that a growing number of men had been discharged from the Army Reserve for no other reason than that their services were no longer required. Deputies from the country who were in touch with these men knew that in some cases at least they had been discharged because representations had been made to the Minister by the local Fianna Fail clubs.

There were many happenings that suggested to the House that the Minister was endeavouring to develop a purely political army. Recently a number of members of the Army Reserve were in training in Portobello Barracks, Dublin, and a friend of one of the officers called to see him there. That man was visited the following day by a member of the new detective force and questioned as to who he had seen at Portobello, what he wanted to see him for, and what business he discussed with him. As far as he (Deputy Mulcahy) knew the detective got full information. Then a number of the Reserve were paraded before a group of officers and questioned in the same way about visitors. It was all part and parcel of the "German plot" mentality of the Ministry, the same mentality that caused the Vice-President (Mr. S T. O'Kelly) to ring up the Archbishop's House on the 'phone, and ask the Archbishop to say to Mr. Cosgrave that two of his Ministers were plotting to raid military barracks that night and take arms.

MINISTER'S DENIAL.

The MINISTER FOR DEFENCE (Mr. Aiken) said that Deputy Mulcahy had made allegations that reservists were discharged because of representations made by local Fianna Fail clubs. That was absolutely untrue. All told since Fianna Fail came into office, there were 61 reservists discharged out of a total of about 8,000, for the reason that their services were no longer required. Undoubtedly, a number of those men who were discharged under regulation were discharged because they were members of the Blue Shirt organisation. In October of last year there was a regulation issued prohibiting members of the Reserve from being members of the organisation which had changed its name frequently, but was commonly known as the Blue Shirts. If, upon inquiry, he found that any member of the reservists was a member of that organisation he would not be retained in the Army. In every case in which men were discharged because they were members of the Blue Shirts, their cases were inquired into by the Civic Guards in the normal way, and it was only on receipt of information from the Civic Guard that they had paraded in blue shirts that he had discharged them.

They had been accused of trying to create a political army, but since they came into office they were doing their utmost to turn it into a real national army, which would have the confidence of the people. If they were to allow members of the Army Reserves to parade in the uniforms of a revolutionary organisation he did not think that people would agree that they were doing their duty by the country or the Army. His view was to put down any idea that might still be in the minds of certain members of the Reserve that they could use the Army for their own purposes and co-operate with their revolutionary friends in their Blue Shirt activities.

Mr. MULCAHY—Has the Minister the slightest scrap of evidence for that?

The MINISTER (Mr. Aiken) said that there had been a certain number of cases that would show, even to the uninitiated, what was happening. The people knew Deputy Mulcahy's record with regard to secret organisations.

Mr. MULCAHY—Glasgow, for instance.

ARMY'S BEHAVIOUR.

The MINISTER—If Deputy Mulcahy thinks that he is going to get away with that sort of stuff, he is mistaken.

Mr. AIKEN went on to say they had a case proved in the High Court where a member of that organisation had been found guilty of seducing a member of the public service to give information. They had the case of an officer of the reserves found guilty of attempting to take bombs, and they saw this man afterwards welcomed by General Mulcahy's friends as a hero. These were things known to the public. They knew that that organisation had an intelligence service trying to find out everything they could about the public services and get them under their control

DEPUTY'S RETORT.

Mr J. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) said that the Minister had proclaimed himself a liar, because he had admitted that day that he had dismissed men from the Army Reserve because they were members of the League of Youth, although he denied that on a previous occasion.

The SPEAKER said that a deputy was not entitled to call a member of the House a liar.

Mr. DILLON said that the Minister's words would speak for themselves. The procedure of this House should not be availed of for the purpose of deliberately deceiving the House and the country in Parliamentary answers The Minister had shown himself to be capable of using the most offensive, provocative and indefensible language that could be thought of. He had referred to the League of Youth as belonging to a revolutionary organisation guilty of various crimes on the Continent. He had no ground whatever for making such allegations.

The Minister had referred to Captain Hughes's case which came before the Military Tribunal, which sentenced Captain Hughes on the uncorroborated evidence of a man who was found to be a perjurer.

MINISTER'S OBJECTION.

Mr. AIKEN objected to Mr. Dillon's statement; he should not be allowed to criticise the Military Tribunal as he had done.

The SPEAKER said that if the Court did not find McNamara a perjurer that statement should not be made.

Mr. DILLON said that he would not have referred to the case but for the fact that the Minister had brought it in to justify himself in the victimisation of the League of Youth. He (Mr. Dillon) would not have mentioned the matter if the Minister had not raised it to substantiate a charge against an organisation which he (Mr. Dillon) was proud to be associated with.

Professor O'SULLIVAN (U.I., Kerry) said that the Minister conveyed that these men were dismissed from the Reserve because they were members of a political organisation.

The motion that the House disagree with the Senate amendment to the bill was passed without a division.

HOUSING BILL.

SOLVING A SOCIAL PROBLEM.

Moving the second reading of the Housing (Financial and Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill, 1934,

The MINISTER for LOCAL GOVERNMENT and PUBLIC HEALTH (Mr. O'Kelly) said that the unparalleled success of their housing programme was shown in the work accomplished since the Act of 1932 became law. Since then 11,692 houses had actually been completed, 15,836 houses were in progress, and 7,120 houses were about to be begun, tenders having been accepted or invited for them. That made a total of 34,648 houses completed, in progress, or about to be begun. That was done in two years as compared with only 26,000 houses provided by the previous administration. In addition to these houses, there were 5,555 houses, in respect of which lands had been acquired and plans approved, and 6,744 houses included in schemes at present being prepared. This made a total of 46,947 houses under proposals initiated during the past two years. The figures included the activities of local authorities, and were mentioned to show the work accomplished and in prospect by the Government.

The present bill dealt mainly with the provision of houses by private persons and public utility societies. It had become necessary, because the £700,000 provided under the 1932 Act for the payments of grants under Section 5 of the Act had been exhausted in the allocations made to private persons and utility societies. Also the Act provided that houses built by private persons and utility societies must be completed by April 1st, 1935, to qualify for grants. The bill proposed to extend that date until 1st April, 1937, and to provide a further sum of £700,000 for the payment of grants in respect of the houses.

THE PRIVATE BUILDER.

To date grants had been allocated to private persons and public utility societies in respect of 4,361 new houses in urban areas, 5,853 new houses in rural areas, and 4,655 houses for reconstruction—a total of 14,869 houses in all, of which 5,580 had actually been completed, the remainder being in progress. Of the total number of houses, in respect of which grants had been allocated, about 75 per cent. were being provided by private persons and 25 per cent. by public utility societies.

The bill proposed, as far as urban areas were concerned, to continue the sliding scale of grants introduced under the parent Act. The grant of £50 at present available would be continued in respect of houses completed up to 1st April, 1936, but would be reduced to £45 in respect of houses completed on or after that date, but before 1st April, 1937. In rural areas the grants available under the parent Act would remain unaltered, but the time for completion of houses would be extended to 1st April, 1937.

Since the passing of the Act of 1932 considerable progress had been made in the development of the building materials industry, and during the past two years the percentage of Saorstat materials used in the provision of the average house had been increased from about 30 per cent. to 45 per cent., and further increases were expected as the housing programme developed.

Building costs did not appear to have undergone any substantial change during the past two years. An inquiry by the Prices Commission into the costs of building materials and appliances was in progress and the findings of the Commission were awaited.

ANOTHER VIEW.

Mr. MULCAHY (U.I., North Dublin) said that it should be remembered that of the houses built in the ten years of the previous Administration 2,000 were built up to 1924, when there was serious disturbance in the country, and when building costs were enormous. The State had to supply the local authorities with two-thirds of the cost of those houses. During the next eight years 24,000 houses had been built. When they compared the work done by private persons in the rural areas in those ieght years—11,588 houses built—with the number built by private persons in the last two years—1,267—they found that only one-ninth of the work had been done in the last two years that had been done in the previous eight years.

It was, he said, a remarkable thing that in the rural districts where, according to the last census, housing was good, such as in the County Wexford, the building of houses had quickened, whereas in areas, such as Donegal, where the conditions were bad, the erection of houses had not gone on in the same proportion.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

The MINISTER, replying, said that in every case, both in urban and rural areas, no opportunity had been lost to endeavour to get local authorities to take advantage of the facilities offered by the Government in connection with housing. In some cases they had failed. In some cases that failure was due to politics, but it was not due to politics in all cases. It was quite true that arrears for rents on labourers' cottages had been increased during the last few years, and the Department had had to take very serious notice of it. He was inclined to think that in some areas the unsatisfactory position was due to laxity on the part of rent collectors, and local authorities had been instructed to take drastic action in such cases.

Mr. T. KELLY (F.F., Dublin, S.) referred to the operation of the Small Dwellings Act in Dublin, and said that with a further £200,000 now being provided, the Dublin Corporation would have expended £800,000 under this head, and he thought that that should be quite sufficient for a long time to come. The Corporation should now confine its attention to the people who could not pay a "bob" for a house.

The bill was read a second time, and the Committee stage was fixed for the 18th inst.

THE CONTROL OF MANUFACTURES.

On the Committee stage of the Control of Manufactures Bill, 1934, a number of amendments by the Minister for Industry and Commerce of a drafting character were agreed to.

On Section 16, which provides for the restricting of manufacture of certain reserved commodities,

Mr. J. M. O'SULLIVAN (U.I., Kerry) suggested that it would be advisable to leave to an expert committee the decision of questions relating to "reserved" commodities.

Mr. LEMASS said that two decisions would have to be made. The first was a political decision—that a certain commodity shall be declared to be a "reserved" commodity subject to the bill. The Executive Council would have to make that decision, but it would not be effective until ratified by the Dail. Another series of decisions would have to be made then as to the persons to whom licences would have to be issued to engage in the production of a "reserved" commodity. He did not contemplate that there would be competition for those licences. The trouble would rather be to get some person to engage in the production.

Professor O'SULLIVAN asked the Minister if he thought that that would save him from pressure from an enterprising manufacturer who knew that the Dail had been turned into a mere machine for registering the Minister's wishes. Pressure undoubtedly would be brought to bear on the Minister, and he (Professor O'Sullivan) suggested that the primary decision in such a matter should be in the hands of some kind of independent commission of experts.

Mr. DOCKRELL (U.I., Dublin Co.) said that in one aspect he could see damage being done to Irish manufacturers. A foreign manufacturer might ask for an order to be allowed to manufacture a certain commodity as a reserved commodity and which was not being manufactured here. There were what might be called border line articles in an industry and which, while not actually being manufactured here, might be regarded by an Irish manufacturer as legitimate fields for the extension of his business. A foreign manufacturer might come in and be granted an Order making such articles reserved commodities for himself, because they were not actually being manufactured here. If such an Order was granted the Irish manufacturer would have a grievance, especially as he might not read every day the official guides which contained the notice of the making of such orders.

Mr. LEMASS said that the section would not do harm to the Irish manufacturer.

The Committee stage was passed and the Report stage fixed for Wednesday, July 18th.

The House adjourned until 18th July next.

Woman's World.

JAM MAKING.

Some Useful Hints.

BY AILEEN

The perfect woman is now contemplating her empty jam-shelves with satisfaction and planning her next campaign with joy. For myself, I confess the joy is in the result, and not in the act of jam-making.

I begin by advising glass jars and cellulose covers, so that you can gloat childishly over the beauty of your handiwork, and, also, but let this be between friends, take action if it shows signs of being less well "preserved" than preserves should be.

TWO HINTS.

However, patience, a good preserving pan and reliable recipes are three-quarters of your requirements. And prevention being better than cure, two tips may be useful:—

(1) Prevent your jam from "candying" by pouring it into jars as soon as it has finished boiling, and tying it down at once. If you do this, it should keep in perfect condition for any length of time.

(2) Make sure that your jam jells properly by boiling sufficiently. For raspberries, black currants, gooseberries and stone fruits allow half an hour to an hour after it reaches boiling point. Test on a saucer before turning into jars.

For strawberries, blackberries, red currants and other soft juicy fruits, either use prepared pectin in the directed quantities or, if you object to this—as some people do—add a small cupful of small sago to each 6lbs. of fruit and sugar. The sago disappears in boiling, makes the jam thicker, brighter in colour, and also increases its food value.

Now for recipes; first, "stand-bys" of mixed fruit, which I recommend specially for family use:—

MIXED FRUIT PRESERVE.

Take pears, plums and apples. Allow 1lb. each of apples and pears to 2lbs. of plums. Of sugar allow 1lb. to each 1lb. of fruit.

Prepare the fruit in the usual way—core, slice and stone—and let it simmer in a jar placed in a large pan of water till soft. Then add the sugar and boil in the preserving pan till its jells.

CURRANT, CHERRY AND RASPBERRY.

Take 1lb. black currants, 1lb. black cherries, 1½lb. raspberries, with sugar and currant juice as below.

First pick and stone the cherries. Put them in the pan first, with 1 gill red currant juice, and boil for about twenty minutes. Then add the rest of the fruit with another ½ to ¾ pint of red currant juice. As soon as the fruit breaks add 1lb. sugar for every pint of fruit and juice. Boil till it sets.

N.B.—This jam needs very careful skimming. Measure very accurately before you add the sugar.

Two very good and rather unusual jams for the connoisseur are these:—

APPLE GINGER.

Select good cooking apples; allow 1lb. sugar to 1lb. fruit. Required also: a small quantity of minced lemon peel; two teaspoonfuls of water (or lemon juice) to each 1lb. of fruit; 20 cloves, half a stick of cinnamon, and enough bruised ginger to flavour—all these spicy things should be tied up in a muslin bag.

Boil all together for one hour, remove the bag, and pot the jam.

TOMATO JAM.

Required: equal weights of yellow tomatoes and lump sugar, and three lemons for every 12lb. of the two together. Use pure cane sugar, roughly broken.

The fruit should be ripe and thin-skinned.

Remove the skins carefully, and place the tomatoes in single layers on dishes and strew the sugar over them. In twenty-four to thirty hours pour off the syrup and boil it, skimming well till it begins to thicken. Then put in the fruit, cook in the usual way, and test. When the jam is ready to be removed (it should be done in about half an hour) add the lemon juice.

FILM FAIR FASHIONS

The Selfridge mannequins shown in the picture are gathered round an Electrolux refrigerator which, when opened, revealed a number of cool and refreshing "soft drinks," which they proceeded to consume with enjoyment. The mannequins include "Gloria" and "Dawn," who are world famous.

A FOUNTAIN PEN ANNIVERSARY.

Some fifty years ago L. E. Waterman, then an insurance agent, lost a prospective client through a blob of ink spoiling the policy he had prepared ready for signature. He little thought that his misfortune would lead to the establishment of a business which would eventually become world-wide in scope.

At that period there was no such thing as a practical fountain pen, so L. E. Waterman set to work and designed one. It proved so satisfactory that manufacturing was commenced on a small scale. The "factory" was a kitchen table behind a tobacconist's shop, and a patent was taken out on February 12th, 1884.

Waterman's present day models are more beautiful and more serviceable than ever. To commemorate the Jubilee Year, two entirely new models have been introduced, incorporating the greatest innovation of recent years—the "tip-fill" feed, which every user will appreciate.

This patented device makes for cleaner and quicker filling. Instead of submerging the pen and soiling the barrel, the point of the nib need only be immersed to cover the vent hole.

GOSSIP OF PARIS

IN France the thing to do at the smart seaside resorts just now is to take an iced drink and eat shrimps before luncheon on the plage.

Here you meet everyone, most of them lovely women, and all in the latest fashions You sit under brightly coloured umbrellas, and are served by waiters in white uniforms trimmed with gold braid, suggestive of somebody's navy.

Straw hats are the vogue, and some of these must measure quite four feet across. They are usually trimmed in brightly coloured gros-grain ribbons, while bathing dresses are often composed of five or more colours in wide stripes

SUPPLE LINES.

Paris fashions make most of the slender figure and subtle lines. Although the time is over when women felt it necessary to bear a close resemblance to emaciated matchsticks, slenderness is still the prime requirement, rounded slenderness and graceful curves. There is only one way of dressing the new figure in order to make the most of it, and the Paris dressmaker has hit the right nail on the head—folds that cling and float, and lines that subtly accent the figure beneath and flatter it to the skies. This insinuating softness is the theme of all the new Paris clothes. The cut, which is intricate, in order to obtain the desired effect, is subordinated to the line, which appears miraculously simple.

For the evening the Paris dressmaker provides flowings and drapings and swaying skirts.

SLEEVES.

Sleeves are of all sorts, sizes and conditions, and there are many partisans of the long-sleeved, full evening dress. The grander the occasion the longer the sleeve. There are, however, different lengths of sleeve for different times of day. Early morning dress sees sleeves reaching barely to the elbow, in the afternoon they reach mid-way between the elbow and wrist, sometimes in a sort of puff blown to the back of the arm, for dinner most dresses are sleeveless, and at ten o'clock for big occasions, the sleeves return with a flourish right down to the tips of one's fingers.

EDWARDIAN FASHIONS.

The Paris dressmaker is the best gardener I know. She uses flowers in a most charming and attractive way. That is when she places them quite close to the throat.

Gay little posies of multi-coloured buds have been sponsored by many dressmakers in their collections, and many women have laid in a good stock of boutonnières for the sunny days.

White gloves are attracting much attention, and are worn with trim costumes of the tailor-made order. Important items are those dainty feminine accessories which we associate with Edwardian fashions, such as jabots, waistcoats, cravats of tulle, of organdie and piqué, fichus, scarves, everything in short, to accentuate feminine attractiveness.

Imitation jewellery, let me tell you, is OUT. Nothing but real stones will do—absolutely nothing, my dears. Which won't mean a thing in the lives of lots of us, but you wealthy women, with bulging safes, are advised to take the tip.

Old-fashioned pearls in ornate settings of gold are very good indeed, and if there are any old corals, any big pieces of onyx, or any loose diamonds or emeralds, lying around the house, by all means get them out and—put them on!

THE SMARTEST HATS.

As the summer sunshine grows stronger, the Paris milliner introduces us to hats with becoming brims and medium width, which she sets upon the head in a straight line with the eyes. Shallow and square crowned are these attractive models, and the brims increase their width for more dressy occasions. Novel straws are being used and a new ciré fabric of firm texture is a favourite, as are also chenille straws.

For the morning and for sports occasions linen, flax and shantung are popular. For the evening satin, tulle and lace are used for chapeaux set off with paradise and aigrette plumes. Then, of course, there are the usual smart felts in pastel colourings, which always look so well with pale-coloured tailor-mades. Some are turned up at the back; others boast brims which turn down all the way round. Trimmings are of the simplest—a few flowers, ribbons and feather effects.

There is an amusing "coolie" hat which strikes a new note, and a shallow crown hat with a broad brim, the extreme edge of which is rolled up partly all the way round. Navy-blue proves its popularity once more, and Paris uses more of that delicate pastel shade to capture the hearts of her clients.

Why Children need GRAPE-NUTS

As a result of modern civilised foods many children grow up with undeveloped jaws, crowded, irregular teeth, and suffer from dental decay at an early age. Grape-Nuts is hard and has to be chewed. It is a fact that regular chewing of Grape-Nuts by children in their early years stimulates the correct development of the bone structure of the entire head and jaws. That chewing is a natural exercise that helps to develop firm, healthy gums and strong, even teeth; beautiful teeth that everyone admires. No cooking or preparation of Grape-Nuts. Serve it straight from the packet with milk, or cream, and a little sugar.

INDIGESTION CURED WHEN ALL ELSE FAILED

If you had had years of Functional Indigestion, and could find nothing to do you any good, would you not think it marvellous if a few doses of the last medicine you tried completely ended your suffering?

Yet this is what happened to a gentleman in Cirencester. Read his own words.

"Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is the only medicine which has relieved me. I have suffered from Functional Indigestion for years and sampled every indigestion mixture available, but with no satisfactory results. I commenced taking Maclean Brand Stomach Powder a few weeks ago, and the effect has been marvellous. I have at last discovered a cure for my trouble, to terminate completely years of suffering."

If you suffer from indigestion or stomach trouble of any sort remember that you can get just the same relief as Mr. N——, but be sure to ask your chemist for the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, with the signature "ALEX C. MACLEAN." It is not sold loose, but only in 1/6, 2/3 and 5/3 bottles in cartons, of Powder or Tablets.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The second reading of the Government's new Housing Bill was passed in the Dail yesterday.—(Page 5.)

The new bill relating to the tobacco industry in the Free State is a most elaborate measure, and deals with every phase of the industry—growing, curing, re-handling, manufacturing and selling. Wide powers are reserved to the Minister for Agriculture under the measure.—(Page 7.)

The first Irish-made glider took the air at Baldonnel yesterday. It has been constructed by six non-commissioned officers in their spare time.—(Page 7.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

Replying to questions in the House of Commons last night, Mr. J. H. Thomas said that recent events in Southern Ireland were not calculated to inspire Northern Ireland to enter into any fusion.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

The forty-six Nazi victims of the week-end have been cremated, but the ashes are being held until the list of names is published.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING

At Bellewstown yesterday Slanthe won the Crockafotha Plate, Cottage Owl the Stewards' Plate, Toga the Shallon Plate, Biddles the Leggan Hall Plate, Coollattin and Mount Essex dead-heated for the Corporation Plate, and High Prestige walked over for the King's Plate.—(Page 10.)

Dublin Market was idle, with a steady tone. Gas Stock was easier.—(Page 3.)

DUBLIN PORT TONNAGE.

SATISFACTORY INCREASE.

At the weekly meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday, the Lord Mayor said that Balbriggan Harbour was in a very bad condition. Mr. Laurie (Chairman) stated that the Board of Works dredger would not be available for another month.

The Secretary (Mr. E. H. Bailey) reported that the total tonnage entering the Port of Dublin for the half-year ended 30th June was 1,255,975, an increase of 86,742 tons over the previous half-year. There was also an increase in the foreign tonnage of 96,596, as against a decrease in cross-Channel and coastwise tonnage of 9,854. The increase in dues collected was £2,837 19s. 3d.

University Members.

In passing the final stage of the Constitution (Amendment No. 23) Bill, which abolishes separate representation for the Free State Universities, Dáil Eireann has reduced democracy to its lowest terms. The Saorstát is now, perhaps, the sole civilised country which denies to education a superior voice in the task of government. "One man, one vote," is her motto henceforward; the illiterate who barely can mark his ballot card counts equally in the selection of a Government with the university graduate whose faculties are trained to thought. It is easy to see why President de Valera has insisted upon this deplorable measure. The two Free State Universities return between them six members, of whom only two are adherents of Fianna Fáil: the three members for Trinity College, Dublin, elected as Independents, generally have opposed Fianna Fáil measures—although, it may be recollected, they were by no means violent partisans of Mr. Cosgrave during his term of office. President de Valera can rely on the country's uneducated vote: he knows that his dangerous and unconsidered policies are unlikely to find favour in the eyes of educated men, and by the abolition of university representation he can do away with four opponents at a stroke. We do not believe that the President has any deeply rooted disapproval of the principle of university representation: his arguments against it lack conviction. We believe, indeed, that if his majority in the Dáil were more secure he would retain the university members; but their clear view of public affairs is a danger to his strength, and, however much the President may distrust his own action, they must go.

It is difficult to avoid the suspicion that President de Valera's resentment is directed exclusively against Dublin University; for two out of the National University's three deputies are members of his own party, and one of those two is a member of his Government. On this basis he would be consistent if he should reduce the voting power of all constituencies that habitually returned members to the anti-Fianna Fáil benches. The present measure, however, seems to be stimulated largely by dislike of Trinity College. For some reason the university, which voted solidly against the Act of Union in 1800, which furnished Tone and Davis with a great part of their intellectual equipment for the battle of nationality, which Emmet was delighted to honour—the university to which, perhaps, President de Valera himself owes a greater debt than he cares to admit—is mocked to-day, by people who ought to have clearer vision, as an "outpost of England." Admittedly, the bulk of opinion in Trinity College for the hundred years preceding the Treaty was in favour of the Union, and most of her sons have remained loyal to the Treaty within the past twelve years; but the same thing might be said of the Irish people in general. There can be no doubt that this spirit of revenge upon Trinity College is largely responsible for the Constitution (Amendment No. 23) Bill; speeches from the Government benches offer constant evidence of the fact. It is a sorry tribute to President de Valera's breadth of outlook that he should seek thus to punish old opponents, rather than to encourage them to play a new—and, from his point of view, a more worthy—part in the affairs of Ireland.

If we assume that the universities will vote in the future as they voted at the last general election, the net result of the bill will be to weaken the opposition to President de Valera by precisely two votes. In return he will have committed his country to a mathematical democracy in which educated interests will have no voice. The highly educated people in any Free State constituency are swamped by the uneducated and half-educated. Lacking separate representation, they will have no representation at all. What is still more serious, university men who are anxious to take up a political career in the Saorstát will be debarred from the outset. The Senate was designed originally to give them a voice in the affairs of State; but the Senate has been voted out of existence. Only the Dáil remains, and, as we see it, the Dáil will have even fewer openings for university men in the future than it has to-day. There are a few university graduates, representing other than university constituencies, in the Dáil at present, but nearly all of the tiny band owe their presence there not to the advantage of superior education, but to their ability as demagogues or to their records in the struggle against England. As the memory of the Anglo-Irish conflict grows dim, the university man who contemplates a political career will be compelled either to act the demagogue or to surrender his ambition; and in either case Ireland will be the poorer. We have bitter need of the fine and well-balanced minds that only education can foster; but, as President de Valera seems to think, the loss of them is more than compensated by a gain of two votes to Fianna Fáil.

The German Battue.

The heavy hand of the Goebbels censorship still prevents the outside world from complete knowledge of the dreadful events that shook the foundations of the German Reich on last Saturday. Nobody knows yet how many persons were shot at the behest of Herr Hitler and General Goering. A complete list of the victims has been promised by the German Government, but its publication already has been postponed six times. It is quite certain that at least forty-six prominent leaders of the "Brown Shirt" movement were shot in cold blood. Sympathy would be wasted on many of them, who seem to have been blackguards of a thoroughly depraved type; but General Goering admits that he gave a very liberal interpretation to the orders which he received from Herr Hitler ("ich habe meinen Auftrag erweitert"), and it is quite possible that many completely innocent men lost their lives in the orgy of carnage. Three days ago the bodies of the men who were shot were cremated. No relatives were allowed to be present. The ashes are being kept for eventual transmission to the dead men's families; but the whole business has been conducted in an underhand and sinister way. Gradually, however, the facts are beginning to come to light. It seems now that among the men who were shot was Herr von Kahr, the well-known Conservative, who was Premier of Bavaria during the time of the Hitler-Ludendorff Putsch. His body, together with that of General von Lossow, a distinguished soldier, has been found on a moor near Dachau, in Bavaria. In other parts of the country, no doubt, similar "executions" have taken place; but until Dr. Goebbels raises the ban on publication nobody, even in Germany, will know the whole truth. In the meanwhile some two and a half million "Brown Shirts" have been sent on leave, and have been forbidden to wear their uniforms. To all intents and purposes they have been disbanded. Probably, a certain proportion of them will be taken back, but reports from Berlin indicate that some 800,000 members of the organisation, who are suspected of Socialist, and even of Communist, leanings, will not be readmitted to the ranks. Here are the elements of a really nasty situation. The outside world had been led to believe that the rank and file of the "Brown Shirt" movement was solidly behind Herr Hitler; now we are told that about forty per cent. of them have strongly Socialist sympathies. What will these young men do? General Goering cannot shoot them all. If they are thrown on the streets, they will be invited to form counter-organisations, and, in Germany's present condition of economic distress, they will not be over-particular concerning the methods which they will adopt to gain a living. The fact seems to be that the Hitler bubble has been burst. The dictator and his immediate friends still are in power, but they are depending entirely on General Goering's executioners. All history teaches us that conditions of this kind cannot last indefinitely. No country can be governed permanently by a firing squad.

Irish Tobacco.

A great deal of attention has been given to the tobacco-growing industry of the Free State both by the former and by the present Government. The latest measure for its encouragement, introduced by Dr. Ryan, leaves little to be desired in its scope; in fact, it must be one of the most comprehensive bills ever proposed on the subject. From first to last, from the planting of the tobacco to its ultimate sale, the Government intends to keep a very watchful eye on the industry. An advisory committee, nominated by the Minister for Industry and Commerce, will be empowered to inspect any place where tobacco is kept or grown. The Minister may fix the maximum acreage for any grower in any one year, and he is given wide powers to regulate the number of plants per acre, the kind of equipment used, the kind of tobacco grown, the method of growing, and the rates of wages that are paid. The grower will be obliged to give full particulars of his equipment for curing, and he will not be able to dispose of his crop except to a licensed "rehandler." Without a licence it will be unlawful to import manufactured or unmanufactured tobacco or to import seed or plants. All this is very welcome so far as it goes; but do these elaborate regulations really mean anything? Do they mean, for example, that the flavour of Irish-grown tobacco will in future approximate to the flavour of the imported Virginian? The question sounds almost frivolous; but it is upon such small matters that the future of the industry may depend. The man in the street does not change his tastes easily. If the new bill can bring Irish-grown tobacco into line with them, it will have scored a triumph; if not, it will be spending time and money on what can never be more than an interesting experiment

Poetry and Politics.

It seems that our law-makers are looking more and more to poetry as a means of self-expression. Not long ago a member of the Northern Parliament, on being expelled from the House, announced that he would > ". . . Come back another day,

> To make the Lundys sway,
> And reduce the Premier's pay."

Now the House of Lords has followed his example. On the second reading of the Finance Bill last Tuesday, Lord Arnold burst into verse, and expressed his dislike of those who had repealed the Land Taxes by treating his hearers to a parody of "Cock Robin." "Who saw them die?" asked Lord Arnold, indignantly, and answered:—

> "'I,' said the Prime Minister,
> 'Though I was one of their parents;
> But I could not save their life without losing mine, and so, of course, they had to go, like so much else if I am to remain where I am.
> I saw them die.'"

Lord Arnold, perhaps, owes a little too much to the style of the young man of Japan, who wrote verses that no one could scan, and who, when his friends told him so, replied: "Yes, I know; but I always try to get as many words into the last line as I possibly can." At the same time, we would commend the idea to members of the Dáil who may wish their personal remarks to strike home; for verse adds a sharper point to the barb of satire. Verse alone is responsible for the fact that Dr. Fell's evil reputation has been handed down through the centuries, though even the writer confessed that he did not know why he disliked him. Who, again, would know that Charles II. never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one if Rochester's epigram had been written in prose?

G.N.R. WINS APPEAL.

FERMANAGH DECISION UPSET.

The Court of Appeal, Northern Ireland (Lord Justices Andrews and Best), yesterday allowed the appeal of the Great Northern Railway Co (Ireland) against the order of the County Court Judge of Fermanagh, awarding £600 as compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Acts to the dependants of John Robert Elliott.

Elliott was a ganger in the company's employment. On August 22 last, when hedge-cutting, he cut his right thumb. It was a very small wound, and after treatment at home he remained at work until October 17. Fourteen days after the original wound another small wound appeared, caused by suppuration, from which there was a discharge, and which never healed up. On October 21 he died from septicæmia. Elliott did not report the accident, and the company's district engineer did not hear of it until he read a letter from the National Union of Railwaymen on November 20.

It was unanimously resolved that the following ten candidates, who obtained the highest number of votes, be elected:—Nos. 25, 3, 28, 22, 31, 7, 6, 13, 5 and 18.

ENTRIES FOR HORSE SHOW.

COMPETITORS FROM FOREIGN ARMIES.

At yesterday's meeting of the Royal Dublin Society Horse Show Committee, held at Ballsbridge, the Director (Mr. E. Bohane) reported that although the entries for the Horse Show had not finally closed it was already certain that they would be in excess of last year. The Society's auctioneers (Messrs. R. J. Goff and Co., Ltd.) have received entries of 754 horses, the largest yet recorded at these sales. In addition, there will be at Ballsbridge a sale of Show hunters on the Saturday morning of the Show.

The following were appointed judges of champion cups—Captain T. A. Wickham Boynton, E. W. Hope Johnstone and Captain Guy Lucas, the Hon. A. E. Parker being appointed general referee.

It was unanimously decided to alter the existing rule so as to permit made polo ponies not bred in Great Britain or Ireland to compete in the class provided for made polo ponies.

FOR FOREIGN ARMIES.

The Committee were pleased to learn that the Director had made arrangements with the Kildare Hunt for the hounds representing that Hunt to head the parade of the Inter-Hunt Competition on the Wednesday afternoon.

The Director also reported that the following nations had accepted the invitation for officers from their Armies to participate in the great International Military Jumping Competitions:—Belgium, France, Germany, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, and the Saorstat.

The Director referred to the invaluable honorary services rendered by Mr. John Higgins, London, and instructions were given to convey to Mr. Higgins the sincere gratitude of the Committee.

GUESTS OF THE R.D.S.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie presided over a meeting of the International Reception Committee of the Royal Dublin Society yesterday, when the arrangements for the housing and entertaining of the foreign officers who will be present as guests of the Society during the period of the Horse Show were considered. A provisional programme, embracing a series of dances, dinners, etc., for which invitations had been received by the Society, were considered and provisionally allotted over a period of eight days covering the Horse Show.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TO-DAY.

EVENTS THAT CHANGED WORLD HISTORY.

JULY 6, 1914.

There is an ominous lull in the events in Central and Southern Europe. Although the tension in Austria is still evidenced by minor anti-Serbian demonstrations, there have been no incidents of importance. It is rumoured, however, that the German Emperor presided at a War Council at Potsdam on Sunday, at which all the Army Chiefs were present, but confirmation of this is lacking. In Albania fighting has broken out, and it is said that Konitza has been captured by troops led by an Austro-Hungarian officer in the Albanian service.

In Britain Lord Roberts, speaking on the adjourned debate on the Government of Ireland Act Amending Bill in the Lords, warned the House of the effect of the crisis in Ireland on the Army unless a solution was found. It was obvious, he said, that the Army would not undertake active operations against Ulster. The true significance of the Curragh episode was the grave issue they had to face. The Army, he said, had no politics, and he hotly denied "the slanderous accusation" that its attitude was part of a deeply laid political conspiracy, and that it had joined hands with the Unionist Party to defeat the Home Rule Bill. The second reading of the bill was carried by 263 votes to 10.

Two hundred thousand rounds of ammunition for the Ulster Volunteers are said to have been landed from a small collier off the County Down coast.

DUBLIN FLOWER SHOW.

ROYAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S AWARDS.

Following the opening of its exhibition of flower paintings in the School of Art, the Royal Horticultural Society of Ireland held its third private flower show at 12 Hume street, Dublin, yesterday, [illegible] an entry of 126 exhibits taxed the accommodation at the society's office to the utmost. LONDON LETTER.

THE DISPUTE WITH IRELAND.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

THE House of Commons took great interest this afternoon in a question put by Mr. McGovern to the Dominions Secretary. He asked whether the Government were prepared to consider the ending of the dispute between the Irish Free State and this country on a basis of a united Ireland under one Parliament. To this Mr. J. H. Thomas said that he could not add to previous statements. This is the usual answer given by Mr. Thomas to Irish questions; but Mr. Maxton asked if it was the last word on the subject. Speaking in a very emphatic manner, Mr. Thomas said that there could be no last word. "If Mr. Maxton means that either this Government or any other Government will coerce Ulster into an agreement against their will, he does not understand the position." The statement was received with cheers from the Government benches. Mr. Healy then inquired whether it was not a fact that the Treaty provided for the setting up of one Government for the whole nation, and to this Mr. Thomas replied that the Treaty provided for one Government, provided both sides were willing to come to terms. "No one knows better than the hon. member," he said, "that recent events in Southern Ireland are not calculated—to put it no higher—to inspire Northern Ireland to enter into any fusion." Mr. Healy, however, is persevering in his efforts, and on Tuesday he will ask Mr. J. H. Thomas to state the total amount collected now under the Irish Free State (Special Duties) Act of 1932, and the amount in dispute at this date between the Government and the Government of the Irish Free State.

Government Difficulties.

The close of the Parliamentary session at Westminster is drawing near, and it has become apparent that the Government will have difficulty in passing two of its more important measures. The Betting and Lotteries Bill and the Sedition Bill are both in a very doubtful position. Both are before Standing Committees, where endless opportunities for obstructions are offered. As regards the Sedition Bill two recent meetings have been adjourned for want of a quorum, though there are still many amendments to be considered. The Committee to consider the Betting and Lotteries Bill will not meet until next Tuesday, and it will be impossible for it to finish with the bill before the adjournment. Bills may be carried over until the re-assembling of Parliament in the third week of October, but, as there will be only a fortnight available before the new session opens in November, it appears impossible that the measures can be got through in time.

The Moratorium Question.

News from Berlin suggests that the arrangement made yesterday concerning the Moratorium question has been received with great satisfaction. Most of the newspapers regard it as a good start for the development of future trade relations. As a matter of fact, the Germans have found it imperative to come to an understanding, and, as Herr Hitler greatly needs aid to avert a financial collapse, he will have to come to terms with the United States as well as with Great Britain. This accounts for the somewhat sudden change in the attitude of the German delegates on the debt question yesterday. They commenced by protesting that Germany could pay nothing, but suddenly changed into a more reasonable frame of mind. In the course of the next few days we are likely to see further developments in Germany, and Herr Hitler may endeavour to secure the support of the business world and the "die hard" Conservatives.

Crisis in Germany.

The situation in Germany is being watched with intense interest in the diplomatic world. It is thought that while Herr Hitler has won the first round in a fight with the Storm Troopers, it is by no means certain that he has conquered. About two and a half million Storm Troopers are now virtually thrown out of employment. Many of these men (it is said, at least, 800,000) are ex-Communists, and may again return to that creed. Some are refusing to give up their arms and to retire from the capital, and there is a real danger that they may resort to opposition of an organised kind. To deal with this great force Herr Hitler has the Army; but that can be used only in the last resort, since its definite employment might precipitate civil war.

M. Barthou's Visit.

M. Barthou, the French Foreign Minister, who is coming to London during the week-end for discussions with members of the British Government, will be accompanied by M. Pictri, the Minister of Marine, and by several naval experts and officials. M. Barthou will be entertained by the Government to an official luncheon party on Monday, and he will return the compliment by giving a dinner party in the evening at the French Embassy. On Tuesday he hopes to leave for Paris.

Henley.

One of the features at Henley Regatta this year is the scarcity of houseboats. In former days many of these water caravans were let for the festival, but a change has developed gradually, and this year there are fewer than ever before. Their absence detracts somewhat from the brilliance of the scene. The general use of motor cars, however, enables people to visit the regatta and return to their homes in the evening, whereas it was a common thing for many people to hire a houseboat and live on the river during the regatta period. A consequence of this is that London hotels are reaping a profit, as much of the entertaining (which at one time would have been done at Henley) now takes place in the West End.

The Church and Missions.

The Archbishop of Canterbury to-day challenges the Church of England to a new effort in respect of its missionary responsibilities. Its "budget of retrenchment," he says, must be turned into a "budget of restoration" by an all-round increase of at least 10 per cent. This means that it must provide for missionary purposes nearly £1,000,000. At the same time the Primate gives instructions that this appeal must be brought home to every member of the Church so that, as the need for the Gospel is world-wide, the horizon of every Church member may be world-wide also.

The R.A.C. Race.

A most satisfactory entry has been received for the R.A.C. Tourist Trophy Race, which takes place over the Ards Circuit, near Belfast, on 1st September. The total is thirty-seven, which is six more than the final entry for last year. This year's race is confined exclusively to standard sports-type cars, which are produced in quantity for sale to the general public. Superchargers are barred; only commercial fuel may be used, and the alterations to the cars are limited by the regulations to certain essentials for racing. So far, the only foreign car to enter the race is the Ford. Nine British manufacturers are represented.

THE ROAD TRAFFIC ACT.

The Ministry for Local Government has issued rules and orders under the Road Traffic Act relating to the issue of driving licences and the use of mechanically-propelled vehicles. The orders are based on the provisions of the Act, several portions of which are now in operation.

TO END UNIVERSITY REPRESENTATION.

GOVERNMENT BILL PASSED IN DAIL.

OPPOSITION ON BAD EFFECT OF ABOLITION.

MR. AIKEN DEFENDS ARMY DISMISSALS.

THE bill to abolish the right of Universities to special representation in the Dail passed its final stage in the Dail yesterday, after a vigorous attack from the Opposition side of the House.

Dublin University deputies denounced the bill on the ground that it would break the last link between the Free State and Northern Ireland, and pointed out that Dublin University objected to being deprived of representation, not because it feared the loss of safeguards, but because its graduates were being deprived of an opportunity to take their part in Ireland's national life.

Mr. S. T. O'Kelly (Minister for Local Government) declared that the Government had "the mandate necessary to voice the views of the majority of the people."

ARMY BILL DEVELOPMENT.

By Our Special Representative.

Old soldiers never die, and the Defence Forces Bill may yet emerge unharmed from the legislative no man's land, lying somewhere between the Senate and the Dail, into which it was cast yesterday, when the tribunes took up the challenge of the senators, and declared another inter-cameral war. Scholarship, however, is protected by no such traditional immortality, and there is no doubt that the sentence of death which the Dail proceeded to pass upon the principle of university representation will become effective, even though the execution may be deferred while the Senate fights yet another rearguard action against the popular House.

Superficially, at least, the fate of the Defence Bill is of greater immediate importance; for, unless it passes into law, there will be no legislative sanction for the maintenance of the Army during the present year. Nevertheless, Mr. Aiken took the risk, and boldly moved that the Dail disagree with the amendment inserted by the Senate, which would limit the operation of the bill to November 30th of this year, instead of allowing it to run until next spring; and, with the concurrence of the Opposition, the motion was passed.

This does not indicate, however, that there is harmony between the two sides on the subject of the Army. Mr. Mulcahy took the opportunity to question the recent dismissals of members of the Blue Shirt organisation from the Army Reserve, alleged that detectives of the new auxiliary police were prying into the affairs of certain officers of the Reserve, and roundly declared that the Government were trying to create the atmosphere of a "German plot"—animated, he added, by the same mentality which caused Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly years ago to ring up the Archbishop of Dublin and ask him to tell Mr. Cosgrave, who then was President of the Executive Council, that two of his Ministers were going to raid military barracks for arms.

Mr. Aiken, who has always evaded questions regarding dismissals from the Army Reserve by stating that the dismissals were due to "services being no longer required," now announced frankly that in some cases they had occurred because the officers in question were members of the Blue Shirt force, and justified his action by references to a "revolutionary organisation," and "the type of organisation responsible for certain crimes which we have seen on the Continent." "We are not going to allow the Army," he announced, "to be undermined."

UNIVERSITIES BILL.

From the arts of war deputies passed to the arts of peace, and Professor O'Sullivan opened the attack on the final stage of the Universities Bill.

Lord Halifax, the British statesman with his newly-conferred Dublin University degree, dropped into a seat in the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery just in time to hear Professor O'Sullivan analysing the motives for the consistent absence of President de Valera, the Chancellor of the National University, from the deliberations on the bill which he himself introduced, and stayed to listen to a denunciation by Professor Thrift, the senior member for Dublin University, of the motives which actuated the Government in bringing in the bill.

Professor Thrift is not numbered among the outstanding speakers of the House, but there are occasions when, under the impulse of strong feeling, he strikes a stirring note; and this was such an occasion. He deplored, in vigorous terms, the fact that university representation had been degraded into a party issue, and reminded the Government that wider vision, as to what Ireland wanted, alone would solve the partition problem.

"This is a question," he said, "which involves the whole country—not the twenty-six counties, not Fianna Fail, but the whole of Ireland; and by this measure, and other such measures, they are condemning the twenty-six counties to isolation from the six counties, which it might have been in their power to put to an end."

Professor Alton, stirred likewise to unusual eloquence, spoke from a sentimental angle of the part which Trinity College had played in the history of Ireland, and expressed his resentment at an act which ostracised its graduates from the vital stream of national life. "Fianna Fail," he declared, wistfully, "had ideals which, though they might find it difficult to believe, I shared. I hoped we might work together some day in breaking down the barriers and bridging the gulfs that exist at present in Ireland. But what you have done is something that will bring suspicion and mistrust. This bill, I fear, will have far-reaching and destructive consequences."

Dr. Rowlette, the third of the Dublin University group, spoke in the same key, pointing out that the grievance of Trinity lay in the loss not of what it regarded as a safeguard, but as an opportunity for its sons to give any service to the country which might be in their power. "The Dail is about to take a step," he proclaimed earnestly, "which will diminish its value as a debating and legislative assembly, which will decrease its reputation in the world, and, perhaps more important, take away the last link in the unity of Ireland."

THE FEMININE NOTE.

Of all the contributions to the debate, perhaps the most interesting was the apologia of Mrs. Concannon, one of the Fianna Fail deputies for the National University, who admitted that she had been drawn into the conflict by the challenges thrown to her from the other side of the House. Although, as she said, she shares with Mr. Tom Kelly the distinction of being one of the Dail's best listeners, she is one of its least frequent speakers, and deputies in and around the House gathered curiously to hear how she would shape. They were rewarded by a racy little address on the functions of a university representative.

"I have never missed a day of parliamentary attendance; the Chair has never had to call me to order; and I have answered all my correspondence." Such were three of the principal qualifications of the deputy, who, with a delightful touch of humour, announced herself as constituting Mr. de Valera's majority over all parties in the House; and, to complete the list of virtues, she announced that she had not wasted the time of the House by compelling it to listen to her oratory.

Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, in winding up the debate, also did not inflict an undue amount of words on the House, his main point being concerned with the controversial question of mandates. The Minister solved the whole problem to his own satisfaction by declaring that the Government had "the mandate necessary to voice the views of the majority of the people," and, apparently, to the satisfaction of the majority of the House, who trooped into the lobby to pass the bill.

SEMI-MILITARY BODIES.

PRESIDENT'S ANSWER TO A QUESTION.

Mr. P. McGILLIGAN asked the President in the Dail yesterday: (a) If his attention has been called to Press reports of a speech made by the Minister for Justice at Bonniconlon, on June 10th last, to the effect that, although there was not a thing that happened at an I.R.A. meeting of which he had not information before twenty-four hours, he doesn't act on such information; (b) if the Minister's neglect or failure to act on such information has been approved of as Government policy; (c) if the Garda have been warned against or prevented from acting on such information; (d) if information which ordinarily would be sent to the Attorney-General for consideration as to whether prosecutions should follow is being withheld by the Minister; and (e) if the meeting of I.R.A. engineers or of other members of the I.R.A. held on Saturday, 10th February last, in Parnell square, was one about which the Minister had previous information, and about which he did not act, and is still refusing to act.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA said that the answer to part (a) was in the affirmative, and to parts (c) (d) and (e) in the negative. With regard to part (b), the policy of the Minister for Justice in dealing with such matters had the full approval of the Executive Council. With regard to the Deputy's question generally, it contained implications which were entirely unjustified. Appropriate action was always taken on any information obtained by the Minister or Garda Siochana which indicated the likelihood of a breach of the peace or of an attack on the person or property of any citizen or section of citizens In every country where uniformed semi-military organisations existed outside the control of the State serious difficulties were experienced in maintaining public order. To judge from published reports of incidents abroad these difficulties were being met at least as successfully here as in any other country.

In reply to a question by Mr. Mulcahy (U.I., North Dublin), the MINISTER FOR JUSTICE said he was not aware that on the evening of 31st May fifty men paraded at Woodhouse, Ballinamult, Co. Waterford, and carried out a practice with one or more machine-guns.

The MINISTER FOR JUSTICE also informed Mr. Mulcahy that police inquiries were still being made into incidents at Ballyporeen on the 14th June, when a member of the League of Youth was alleged to have been held-up by three armed men armed with two revolvers and a shotgun, that shots were fired over his head, his shirt torn, and the man himself knocked down and badly kicked and warned not to report the matter under penalty of death.

CRASH OF BOMBER 'PLANE.

TWO AIRMEN KILLED.

Sergeant-Pilot Henry Thomas Light and Leading Aircraftsman William St. George Dowsing were killed yesterday, when a Royal Air Force bomber 'plane crashed during diving and bombing practice at Northolt Aerodrome. Both men were members of the Number 18 Bomber Squadron, which is stationed at Upper Heyford, Oxfordshire. The 'plane ran for some distance on striking the ground and burst into flames, the heat being so intense that no person could approach it. An explosion appears to have wrecked the machine, and the engine was found about a quarter of a mile from the other wreckage.

SUMMER'S HOTTEST DAY.

NO SIGN OF A SERIOUS BREAK.

Sir John W. Moore, M.D., last night told an Irish Times reporter that yesterday was the hottest day experienced during the present summer. The temperature ranged from 54 to 78 degrees in the shade, the sky was all but cloudless, and the heat of the sun was very marked. "Although the barometer is giving way slowly," he said, "there is no sign of a very serious break in the weather. Local clouds and showers may occur during the afternoons."

During the week ended Saturday last in Dublin the maximum air temperature was 74.2 degrees, and the minimum 48 degrees; in London 78 degrees, Edinburgh 74 degrees, Glasgow 69.8 degrees, and Belfast 69 degrees.

MILLION BROWN SHIRTS TO GO.

STORM TROOPS THIN OUT.

NAZI VICTIMS CREMATED.

ASHES KEPT TILL LIST IS PUBLISHED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BERLIN, Thursday.

IT was learned to-day that the bodies of the 46 or 47 men in the secret second list of victims of Hitler's drive against Nazi Party "traitors" were cremated three days ago.

The ashes are being kept, and the anxious wives and mothers of missing men will be allowed to claim them when the list comes out to confirm their fears. So far no information is forthcoming as to what steps have been taken to ensure the correct identification of the dead men's ashes before they are handed over.

Reuter was informed to-night that the list of the victims will eventually be published after all. Its issue was held back for a sixth time this evening.

The cleaning up of the Storm Troops is being taken energetically in hand, and Reuter learns through good sources that at least 40 per cent., or about 1,000,000 of the total strength of the Brown Army of two and a half million men, will be disbanded.

Each section leader is now examining the antecedents and political views of the men under him, and those who are not proved absolutely loyal to Hitler and in other respects reliable, will be dismissed.

The very large number of Storm Troopers who were formerly either Socialists or Communists will certainly have to go, and care will be taken that they do not have a chance to build up organisations of their own.

FOREIGN NEWSPAPERS IN DEMAND.

Hitler's coup last week-end appears to have scared many intending British and American visitors, who are so badly needed to replenish Germany's shrunken holdings of foreign exchange, that sweeping reductions in rail fares have been announced.

It is virtually impossible to buy an English newspaper; for the few which reach Berlin are immediately bought by Germans anxious for outside views of recent events.

Dr. Goebbel's Angriff has an attack to-night on Germans who support the foreign Press. "Who wants foreign newspapers?" runs the heading. The true answer at the moment would appear to be "everybody." The sale of Swiss newspapers, which are printed in German, has been forbidden.

The shooting of three of the many prominent men rumoured dead at Munich is now confirmed. They are Herr von Kahr, former Dictator of Bavaria; General von Lossow, formerly of the Reichswehr, and Colonel Seisser, former Commander of Police.

Hundreds of office workers passing Columbus House, the skyscraper block of offices in the centre of Berlin, this afternoon saw a young girl leap from the roof garden of the building with a scream, and crash on to the pavement 150 feet below. Up to to-night the girl had not been identified.

Last Saturday Columbus House was closed by S.S. men while the premises of a Nazi Party office in the building were being ransacked

A thirty-five years old workman named Ernst Reutmann was sentenced by the Berlin Court to-day to five years' imprisonment for having made "insulting remarks" about Adolf Hitler.

It was rumoured here this evening that Cardinal Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich, had been arrested. No confirmation whatever of the report has so far been obtainable, and, on the face of it, such a step would appear to be a most unlikely one.

MORE MUNICH DEATHS.

"Times" Telegram.

MUNICH, Thursday.

The death-roll of the week-end occurrences in Munich has been increased by three more names. One of the victims, Dr. Glaser, was leader of the Nazi Party in Bavaria in 1924 and a close friend of Herr Gregor Strasser, who was shot in Berlin.

The second, Dr. Fritz Gerlich, has been well-known in Bavaria as editor of the Gerader Weg, a courageous periodical which stood up against Nazi methods and was particularly antagonistic to Captain Roehm.

The death of Father Muhler has greatly aroused Roman Catholic feeling, as his popularity was even increased by his courageous attitude during his trial for alleged anti-State activity on January 24th.

ARRESTS ON LINER.

"Times" Telegram.

OSLO, Thursday.

When the German liner Sierra Cordoba yesterday anchored at Geiranger on her trip to the Nordkap it was evident that the liner was under the custody of black-uniformed S.S. men.

Four passengers who left the ship went to a hotel, and begged to have reports on the German situation in Norwegian newspapers translated. They were very thoughtful on hearing the news, and one of the company told The Times Correspondent that eight persons, all of them seamen, had been arrested on board as the result of a wireless message to the captain.

DUBLIN PORT DISPUTE.

SETTLEMENT EFFORT FAILS.

Efforts were made yesterday to secure a settlement of the strike of London, Midland and Scottish carters at the North Wall, Dublin, but without result.

A new offer made by the company at a conference, held at the suggestion of the Department of Industry and Commerce, during the day, was rejected by the men last night.

The London, Midland and Scottish Railway Company yesterday ran a special boat from Dublin to Holyhead, carrying over 300 head of cattle, 1,000 sheep and 15 horses, bought in Ireland, to the order of the Dutch Government. This was the first ship owned by the company to leave Dublin since the beginning of the dispute.

Carters employed on the London, Midland and Scottish Railway in London have decided to refuse to handle parcels for the South of Ireland. The L.M.S. Railway Carters' Union meeting in London yesterday was in favour of "solidarity action on this side of the Channel," and of raising funds for L.M.S. carters at the North Wall, Dublin, who have struck work.

LIMERICK CITY BILL.

MANY CHANGES OUTLINED.

COUNCIL REDUCED BY HALF.

MANAGER TO BE APPOINTED.

By Our Political Correspondent.

UNDER the new Limerick City Management Bill provision is made for the setting up of a City Council, with a Mayor, and the appointment of a City Manager and Town Clerk. Certain duties are reserved to the Council, and others of an executive nature will be performed by the City Manager and Town Clerk. Both are defined in the bill.

The following bodies are to be abolished: The City Board of Health, the Committee of Management under the Tuberculosis Prevention Acts and the Gas Committee. Their functions are to be transferred to the Corporation.

The first schedule sets out the provisions for the transfer of the property of the abolished bodies, their liabilities, contracts, by-laws, books, etc. Officers of these bodies are to become officers of the Corporation.

The functions of the Limerick Union, so far as exercisable within the city, are to be transferred to the Corporation.

FOUR ALDERMEN.

The new Council of the city will consist of 15 members—4 Aldermen and 11 Councillors. The existing Council consists of 8 Aldermen and 32 Councillors.

A city election must be held (a) within three months after the passing of the Act; (b) in the year in which a triennial election for the Council of Limerick County is first held after the expiration of two years from the passing of the Act; and (c) in every third year subsequently. The city will form one electoral area for such election.

The Council shall elect a Mayor at their first meeting after every 22nd June.

The manager may be appointed a member of the Joint Committee of Management of the Limerick District Mental Hospital.

The person appointed to be City Manager shall be known as the Limerick City Manager and Town Clerk. He shall perform the duties of the Corporation in relation to the appointment and removal of officers and servants of the Corporation, and shall perform other functions, except those reserved to the Council.

MANAGER'S APPOINTMENT.

The City Manager's appointment shall be made by the Council. Before the first appointment of Manager the Minister may, if he considers it expedient, appoint by an order a person to act as Manager until such appointment is made. The Manager shall not be removed without the approval of the Minister. The Minister shall determine his remuneration. He will carry out all lawful orders of the Council in relation to the exercise of the reserved functions. He shall have the right to attend meetings and take part in discussions, but without the right to vote. In the event of dispute between the Council and the Manager the Minister shall decide.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

A NEW JAPANESE GOVERNMENT.

The Times, in the course of a leading article, to-day, says:—No Japanese crisis is solved without a summons to Prince Saionji, the veteran statesman, to emerge from his retirement and give his advice on the political situation about which he is always kept closely informed. His recommendations seldom accord with public expectation, but they are invariably adopted. Following the resignation of Viscount Saito last Tuesday, he recommended to the Emperor that Admiral Okada should become Prime Minister. Admiral Okada received the Imperial command to form a Ministry on Wednesday, and by last night had almost completed it. Prince Saionji's advice was given after he had consulted with the leading statesmen of the day, and this system of nomination, peculiar to Japan, combines detachment of judgment with detailed information, and indifference to intrigues with full knowledge of them.

Though every endeavour is made to keep politics out of the armed forces, their influence on policy, observes The Times, is very great. Admiral Okada is regarded as a disciple of the Togo school. He commands the confidence of the Navy and the Army, and at the same time he has undertaken to continue the policy of Viscount Saito, which appears to have the approval of articulate public opinion. The maintenance of Mr. Hirota at the Foreign Ministry indicates that in foreign, as in home, affairs there is likely to be continuity of policy. The naval negotiations connected with next year's conference loom large on the Japanese horizon, and Admiral Okada showed by his conduct on the conclusion of the London Naval Conference that he stands for a powerful Navy, while being ready to give proper consideration to the claims and views of other countries.

THREE STRIKERS DYING.

SAN FRANCISCO STREET BATTLES.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Thursday.

Streets of the city have been turned into miniature battlegrounds, in which the waterfront strikers are using motor cars as shields against the police firing.

The whole of the National Guard, consisting of 5,000 men, has been ordered to stand by.

The vomiting gas, with which the troops are equipped, is designed to render victims helpless for at least two days.

Latest reports state that the rioting is increasing in intensity. A huge crowd is bombarding the police with bricks. Three strikers are reported to be dying, and many others are wounded.

SEVEN WOUNDED IN AMSTERDAM RIOTING.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

AMSTERDAM, Thursday.

Desperate fights occurred this evening between large bodies of Communists and police in Amsterdam's "East End." The riot was a sequel to the fighting which took place yesterday evening after a Communist demonstration.

When barricades were set up by the rioters the police began to fire. Seven persons were wounded, some of them seriously.

MR. THOMAS ON FREE STATE.

NO COERCION OF ULSTER.

DISASTROUS EFFECT OF CAPITULATION.

IN the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Maxton (Labour) asked the Dominions Secretary whether the Government were prepared to consider the ending of the dispute between the Irish Free State and Great Britain on the basis of a united Ireland under one Parliament.

Mr. J. H. Thomas replied that the position of the Government in this matter had been set out in Paragraph 4 of his despatch to the Irish Free State Minister for External Affairs on April 9, 1932, and supplemented by a reply he gave in Parliament on April 15, 1932. He had nothing to add to these statements.

Mr. Maxton—May I ask if that is the last word of the Dominions Secretary on the subject?

Mr. J. H. Thomas—There can be no last word. If Mr. Maxton means that this Government or any other Government would coerce Ulster into an agreement against its will, then he does not understand——

The conclusion of the reply was drowned in Ministerial cheers.

Major Ross (Conservative, Londonderry)—Is the Dominions Secretary aware that the liberties of the people of Northern Ireland cannot form part of any bargain?

Mr. Cahir Healy (Nationalist, Tyrone) asked whether the Irish Treaty did not provide for the setting-up of one Government for the whole nation?

Mr. J. H. Thomas—The Treaty provided for an agreement, if both sides were willing to come to terms. No one knows better than the honourable member that recent events in Southern Ireland are not calculated—to put it no higher—to inspire Northern Ireland with the desire to enter into any fusion. (Ministerial cheers.)

Major Ross—Were we not supposed to have bought the friendship of the people of the Irish Free State by the Treaty?

Mr. Cahir Healy—Is not the Dominions Secretary aware that the Treaty has not been carried out so far? (Cries of "By the Free State.")

Mr. Maxton—Does not the fact that Mr. Thomas holds his present position offer an unrivalled opportunity for this country to go into this whole Irish problem in a new spirit. (Laughter.)

Mr. J. H. Thomas—There is no member of the Government who would not welcome a settlement, but you do not get a settlement by capitulating to terms that would, in the end, be more disastrous than the existing situation.

Irish-Made Glider Takes the Air.

SUCCESS OF BALDONNEL EXPERIMENT.

By a Special Correspondent.

SOMETHING new in Free State flying history happened yesterday when the first Irish-made glider to "take the air" successfully rose from the ground at Baldonnel Aerodrome, piloted by one of the six non-commissioned officers of the Army Air Corps who were responsible for its construction.

Mr. Frank Aiken, Minister for Defence, and Mr. P. J. Ruttledge, Minister for Justice, watched the testing of the new machine, as well as Major-General Brennan, the Chief of Staff; Major-General MacNeill, the Assistant-Chief of Staff; Major-General McMahon, Secretary of the Department of Defence; Colonel L. Hayes, Adjutant-General, and Major J. Cotter, of G.H.Q. They were received at the aerodrome by Major J. J. Lister, O.C., Baldonnel.

Twelve men, pulling on the two ends of a rubber rope, launched the glider on its flights, with Company-Sergeant J. R. Maher, one of the six constructors of the machine, and one of the most skilful mechanics in the force, in the cockpit. At the first test the glider soared for a distance of fifty feet, and, at the second, for a hundred feet. A third attempt, at Mr. Aiken's request, resulted in a flight of a hundred yards, followed by a perfect landing in two hops.

SPARE TIME JOB.

The results of the experiment went beyond all expectations. "Astounding," was the word used by Company-Sergeant Maher, who assured me that exceptional achievements will be accomplished with the machine, which has been made by himself and his five fellow "non-coms." in their spare time during the last two and a half months. The other five are Sergeant A. Canavan, Sergeant J. Smith, Corporal F. Delaney, Corporal K. Hogan and Corporal P. Mullaney. They all worked under the supervision of Mr. O'Sullivan, the aeronautical engineer at the aerodrome, with the aid of drawings that had been procured.

The machine itself is of the Dickson type, with a modified German wing; weighs 230 lbs., and has a wing-span of 34ft. 6½ins. It is made of spruce and plywood; it is equipped with ordinary aeroplane controls—latitudinal, longitudinal and directional—is capable of rising two hundred feet off level ground, and, with practice, could remain for a couple of minutes in the air. On this occasion, its first practice, it landed at a speed of about twenty-two miles an hour.

It is hoped to repeat this initial success with a second glider, which is now to be built at the aerodrome. This will be of the more advanced "sail plane," or "soarer," type, which will be able to rise to a greater altitude and to remain longer in the air.

Gliding may look forward to an important future as an adjunct to the existing means of flying in Ireland. It will probably play a big part in the work of the Army Air Force, as the glider is an excellent means for making pilots who are under instruction, used to the air, and also provides excellent sport.

COLONEL HEADLAM.

MINISTERIAL POST RESIGNED.

Colonel C. M. Headlam's resignation of his post as Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Transport, was officially announced last night. The resignation will not affect his seat in the House of Commons as member for Barnard Castle.

DUBLIN HONOURS LORD HALIFAX.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred by the Senate of Dublin University yesterday on Viscount Halifax, formerly Lord Irwin and Viceroy of India.

Viscount Halifax later paid a visit to the Dail, and was an interested spectator in the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Literature was conferred on Professor J. D. M. Ford, President of the American Academy of Science. (See also Page 4.)

THE TOBACCO INDUSTRY.

REGULATIONS IN NEW BILL.

EVERY DETAIL OF GROWING AFFECTED.

BONUS FOR HIGH-CLASS TOBACCO.

THE bill introduced by Dr. Ryan in the Dail for the regulation and control of tobacco-growing and manufacture in the Free State has now been issued. The bill deals also with the sale of such tobacco and other matters concerning tobacco, whether home-grown or imported.

A Tobacco Advisory Committee is to be set up by the Minister for Industry and Commerce to advise that Minister. It will consist of such representatives of manufacturers as the Minister thinks fit. The members will be nominated by him, and they may be paid such amounts as the Minister for Finance may sanction.

Premises on which tobacco seeds or plants are kept, or where tobacco is grown, cured or re-handled, may be inspected by representatives of the Ministry, and records may also be inspected. The Commissioners may make regulations for securing the Excise duties on tobacco, etc. Breach of such regulations renders the person liable to fines up to £50 and forfeiture of the article.

FIXING THE ACREAGE.

Part 2 of the bill relates to the control of production in the Free State of tobacco for manufacture. The Minister may make regulations fixing the maximum number of acres which may be planted with tobacco each year; the minimum number of acres which may be planted by any one person, and the minimum by any person other than persons growing for experimental purposes.

The Revenue Commissioners may make regulations specifying the grounds on which growers, curers and re-handlers' licences may be refused. It will not be lawful to grow tobacco without licence.

The Minister may make regulations in relation to the following matters affecting growers, and the same matters in as far as they affect rehandlers and curers:—(a) the maximum and minimum number of tobacco plants per acre which may be planted; (b) the varieties of tobacco that may be grown in any particular year; (c) the equipment to be used; (d) the method and processes of growing tobacco; (e) the making of returns; (f) the records to be kept; (g) the dates on which operations relating to the growing of tobacco shall be concluded.

RATE OF WAGES.

The Minister further may make regulations regarding minimum rates of wages at rehandling stations, specifying piece or time rates under penalties not exceeding £100. Records of wages paid must be kept at rehandling stations.

Under Part 3, which deals with the disposal of each season's crop, growers will be obliged to make returns giving particulars of the area of tobacco planted by him, etc.

COSTING FIGURES.

Part 4 of the bill deals with experimental licences, and Part 5 is concerned with tobacco seeds and plants, restriction on production of seed, or possession of seed, and also on the possession of plants.

Part 6 makes it unlawful to import tobacco, whether manufactured or unmanufactured, without licence; also to export Free State grown tobacco without licence. Licence is also required to import seed or plants.

All tobacco will be graded as to quality. Manufacturers of tobacco will be obliged to use whatever quantity of home-grown tobacco it is determined shall be grown in the country.

HOUSES NOT RENT FREE.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S CLAIM FAILS.

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Thursday.

THE Northern Court of Appeal to-day dismissed the claim by Belfast ex-Service men that they were entitled to hold rent free for life cottages provided by the Irish Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust.

Lord Justice Andrews said that the claim of the plaintiffs to assign a fiduciary character to their possession of their cottages in substitution for the relation of landlord and tenant, to which they voluntarily assented many years ago, was quite unsustainable.

Lord Justice Best concurred in the decision.

A stay of execution was given until the first day of the new term.

The appeal was by Edward Hanna, 23 Thiepval avenue; Thomas McDowell, 22 Thiepval avenue; William James Frazer, 9 Somme drive, and John Campbell, 38 Lille avenue, against the decision of Mr. Justice Megaw in dismissing their claim against the Irish Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust to hold the cottages provided by the Trust free of rent for life.

The appellants sought a declaration that upon the true construction of the Acts setting up the Irish Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust they and other ex-Service men holding cottages from the Trust were entitled to possession of the cottages free from all rent, rates and taxes, cost of repairs and all other burdens and charges; and a further declaration was sought that the contracts of tenancy between the Trust and the appellants and any other ex-Service men were wholly null and void.

IN FREE STATE.

In the course of his judgment, Lord Justice Andrews said:—"This is a far-reaching claim, which was never advanced seriously, if at all, in Northern Ireland until the decision of the Supreme Court of the Irish Free State in a similar action of Leggett and others against the present defendants, which was given on July 29th last."

Referring to the Act of 1919, he said if Parliament intended that the houses should be given to ex-Service men free it could scarcely have failed to insert the word "free" or "free of rent." It also seemed to him unintelligible why those ex-Service men for whom cottages were "provided" should be accommodated rent free while other ex-Service men—equally deserving members of the same class—for whom holdings were "provided" under the earlier sections of the same Act should be required to pay purchase annuities.

"In my opinion," proceeded the Lord Justice, "there is not the slightest justification for the suggestion that either the whole class of ex-Service men in Northern Ireland, or certain then unascertained and unselected members thereof, had their legal status and rights altered in such a drastic measure as to constitute them beneficiaries, who, when they were selected for the cottages, became entitled under a so-called statutory trust instrument to claim and hold the cottages, rent, tax and rate free for their lives against not only the Trust, but all other less fortunate members of the general body of ex-Service men."

DUBLIN DECISIONS.

His lordship said he had carefully read the judgments of Mr. Justice Johnston and members of the Free State Supreme Court in the case of Leggett and others against the Trust, and he unhesitatingly accepted the views expressed in the former, in which the powers of the Trust to make lettings were upheld. He was quite unable to accept the view that the claims of the Trust were "preposterous," for it was an undoubted boon to the men to get the cottages at reasonable rents.

TRIBUNAL CASE RESUMED.

COUNSEL ALLEGES IRREGULARITIES.

CLAIM THAT HUGHES SENTENCE IS VOID.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL REPLIES.

IN the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, three judges—Mr. Justice Sullivan, Mr. Justice Meredith and Mr. Justice O'Byrne—resumed their hearing of an application made on behalf of Captain Patrick Hughes, proprietor of the Midland Hotel, Upper Dominick street, Dublin, for an order to make absolute a conditional order of habeas corpus and certiorari.

The hearing was devoted to arguments put forward on both sides as to the jurisdiction, authority and legal existence of the Constitution (Special Powers) Tribunal, otherwise known as the Military Tribunal.

Captain Hughes was charged before the Constitution (Special Powers) Tribunal with having attempted to bribe Detective-Officer Timothy McNamara to procure, through a clerk at Police Headquarters, confidential documents regarding Government policy and proposed activities against the League of Youth. He denied the charge, but was convicted by the Tribunal, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. The application was brought on thirteen grounds.

Apart from the submission that the conviction was against the weight of evidence, there were alleged to have been irregularities in the procedure, and there was a further submission that the Constitution (Amendment No. 17) Act, 1931, under which the Tribunal was set up, was ultra vire unconstitutional, and void, and that the Tribunal consequently had no lawful existence.

Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C.; Mr. A. K. Overend, K.C.; Mr. C. Lavery, K.C.; and Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Mr. P. F. O'Reilly) appeared for Captain Hughes; and the Attorney-General (Mr. Conor Maguire, K.C.); Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C.; Mr. Jas. Geoghegan, K.C.; Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C.; Mr. P. J. McEnery, and Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the Attorney-General in opposition to the application.

AN OBLIGATION.

Continuing his argument that the conviction of Captain Hughes was void, Mr. Costello said that the Tribunal, being an "inferior" tribunal, was under an obligation to show jurisdiction on the face of its order. That had not been done in this case. A subject, even if guilty of murder or high treason, could not be deprived of his liberty except by due process of law. That principle had been incorporated and strengthened in the Constitution of the Saorstat. But, here, Captain Hughes had been deprived of his liberty by a method which was not merely regardless of the due process of law, but of the essentials of justice.

In basing his contentions on some of the authorities to which he had referred, Mr. Costello said that they proposed to condemn the Tribunal out of their own mouths in the document they furnished to the newspapers. This Tribunal, when doing what they referred to as promulgating their decision, got a sergeant to telephone the result; they got the Governor of the jail to tell Captain Hughes; and they gave a statement to the Press—all in the absence of Captain Hughes, his solicitor, and counsel.

The two documents forthcoming in this case were the statement to the Press and the alleged orders that were presumed to be the warrant to the jailer. That judgment was remarkable in form and phraseology. They adjudged Captain Hughes guilty of the charges proved against him. It would look as if that was the finding of the Court; but they were not content with that, as it was further stated that the Tribunal, as part of their adjudication in the case, found him guilty of another charge, which was never preferred against him. The word "find" was apparently not lightly used. They were aware of the significance of the word, because they "find" him guilty of something else which is not charged.

MAIN WITNESS.

It was also stated that the Tribunal took into account that a man whom they found to be a perjurer "encouraged Captain Hughes to pursue his illegal activities." That was not merely a finding that this man was an agent provocateur; but they found him guilty of being an accomplice—being an actual participant in the alleged crime.

Referring to the evidence given in the case, Mr. Costello said that certain police officers were examined on matters which were irrelevant; but the main witness to the letter, which was the basis of the case, was Detective-Officer McNamara, who was found to be an accomplice and a perjurer, and not merely found so by the Tribunal, but published in a letter sent to the Press by this Tribunal. No witness put forward by the State suggested, nor did Counsel for the State suggest, that there was any document in the case other than the document alleged to have been written by Captain Hughes and handed by him to Detective-Officer McNamara.

Mr. Costello, continuing, said that it was evident that once the Tribunal had disregarded McNamara's evidence, and then proceeded to convict Hughes of an offence with which he was not charged, they had offended against "the fundamental rules of the legal game." When they found that this letter was not written by Detective-Officer McNamara they disbelieved McNamara, and yet they found Hughes guilty of all the charges made against him, and went on and made another finding in the teeth of all that—that Hughes communicated the document to McNamara—a document that he did not write.

THE LETTER.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne said that it appeared on the evidence that the case made was that McNamara saw Hughes write the letter in his presence, that he thereupon handed it to McNamara, who handed it to his Chief Superintendent. The Tribunal held as a fact that Hughes did not write the letter, but they also found that the document was communicated by Hughes to Detective-Officer McNamara. Did that mean that Hughes did not write the letter at all, but that he handed to Detective-Officer McNamara a document which purported to be written and signed by Hughes, but which, in fact, was not signed or written by him at all?

Mr. Costello—I can see no other meaning. And yet the only suggestion at any stage of the case was that Hughes wrote it and handed it to McNamara.

Mr. Justice Sullivan—If there was any other suggestion it is possible that the whole line of cross-examination might be essentially different.

Mr. Costello said that that was so. An accused person was entitled to know under what statute, and with what offence, he was being charged, and what the evidence against him was going to be, so that he would know the case he was going to meet. The only case Captain Hughes had to meet on the precis of evidence was that he had written that document. Although he denied writing the letter in his evidence, he never got an opportunity of saying he never saw it in his life, and yet the Tribunal found that he did not write it, but added a new charge, and found that he communicated a letter to McNamara that he did not write. The procedure, he submitted, outraged all the elements of natural justice, and it was evident that Hughes did not get fair play.

Counsel went on to say that surely, if ever there was a finding of a specific offence, it was the finding of the Tribunal that Hughes had communicated the letter he did not write to McNamara.

"Surely," said counsel," this outrages all ideas of decency, not to say justice, and for this offence, with which he was not charged, they imposed the mitigated sentence of two years' imprisonment. One wonders what the sentence would be if they found that the document was not a forgery, and believed the only witness for the State."

PUBLICATION.

Mr. Costello commented on the manner in which Captain Hughes had been informed of his sentence, and said that neither he nor his counsel had an opportunity to point out to the Military Tribunal what they were doing. Further, the alleged warrant was not a conviction at all. It referred to something that was done in the past, and the only thing done in the past was the newspaper publication of the findings, and, therefore, the only justification for the order was the document issued to the Press.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne—And for the purposes of this case it must be taken as the conviction.

Mr. Costello—It is the only document purporting to be the order of conviction, and was given to us as such. Indeed, it was handed to the Court by Commandant Feely as the order of conviction. As I have said, it is in the past tense, "was charged, was adjudged guilty of all the said offences," and then they sentence him to two years' imprisonment in respect of all the charges included.

"The whole procedure," said Mr. Costello, "was so contrary to natural justice that your lordships, exercising, in the interest of the subject, jurisdiction over an inferior Court, cannot allow this man to remain in jail. In addition to finding him guilty on the uncorroborated testimony of a witness, whom they disbelieved on a vital particular and whom they found to be an accomplice, they proceeded to sentence him in his absence." Counsel cited decisions laying down the principle that an accused person should always be present in court when a sentence involving corporal punishment, such as imprisonment, was being imposed. There was no suggestion that the Military Tribunal had been given any power to dispense with those requirements.

A RIGHT.

It had also been decided that an accused person was entitled to have the charges preferred against him set out with "reasonable particularity." Captain Hughes had been charged with "writing" a letter. The Tribunal found he did not "write" the letter, but had communicated it to Detective-Officer McNamara. How was Captain Hughes to meet that case, when he had not been charged with "communicating the letter"? In respect of three charges which were made, the certificate of the Minister was required. That certificate was not produced or proved at the trial, and was not set out in the order made by the Tribunal. There were four charges made against Captain Hughes, but there was only one general sentence of two years' imprisonment covering the lot.

Counsel having cited cases to support this point, Mr. Justice Meredith said that there were so many ways in which the law could be proved wrong that the Tribunal might as well close down. (Laughter.)

Mr. Costello—The sooner it closes down the better; that is what we want.

Mr. Martin Maguire—That comes well from the man who gave it birth.

Mr. Costello—Gave it a very good birth, and watched over it very well while I was there.

Concluding, Mr. Costello said that he had addressed the Court on all points raised in the order dealing with certiorari, except the one on the Constitution. His object was to get Captain Hughes out, and he was satisfied that he had made a case to warrant the Court granting the order sought. He did not propose to raise the constitutional point at the moment. His object was to get Captain Hughes out as quickly as possible, and the constitutional point, which would be argued in the next case which came before the Court, would take some time. He was not, however, to be taken as abandoning the constitutional case—he had it made up, and was prepared, if necessary, to argue it, but he was relying on the points he had submitted.

STATE'S REPLY.

The Attorney-General, in reply, said that he interpreted Mr. Costello's closing remarks to mean that the Court was not to be troubled with any constitutional points in this case. That was a surprising announcement, seeing that the conditional order was applied for on constitutional as well as on other grounds, and that the Supreme Court, in considering it, took into account that fundamental issues were to be raised. The constitutional points went to the very root of the jurisdiction of the Tribunal, and, in a sense, it was unsatisfactory that they were not being argued in this case. It was stated that they would arise in the next case in the list for that Court.

But the position now was analogous to that in the O'Duffy case—everybody treating the Tribunal as having been properly established by a valid law—and the arguments proceeded on that basis. The vital difference was that this was an attempt to challenge a conviction and sentence by the Tribunal. In the O'Duffy case the Court were invited to consider whether a summons to attend before the Tribunal on certain charges was within their jurisdiction.

The points made by Mr. Costello could all have been made before the Tribunal had proceeded to a decision. Patrick Hughes was served before the trial with a copy of the charges and an extended summary of the evidence proposed to be given. In that summary the fact was mentioned that the Minister's certificate and the consent of the Attorney-General had been received in respect of certain charges; the trial was adjourned from one date to another to suit the convenience of Patrick Hughes, and, at the resumption, it was mentioned that the certificate and consent were before the Tribunal.

The trial lasted for several days, but it was only when the proceedings were finished that objection was taken. It would be shown that the trial was properly conducted, and that the charges had been set out with the necessary particularity.

MAIN ISSUE.

Mr. Costello had, continued Mr. Maguire, alleged that the main issue in the trial was whether Patrick Hughes had written a particular letter or not, and that there was no charge of "communicating" the letter. As a matter of fact, the charges before the Tribunal, and of which Hughes had got a copy, referred to a course of conduct covering some months and mentioned a number of days on which offences were committed. He submitted that, by reason of the statute setting up the Tribunal and by reason of the procedure followed in this case, there was no jurisdiction for that Court to interfere with the decision of the Tribunal by way of habeas corpus or certiorari.

But, assuming that everything said by Mr. Costello in regard to the trial of Patrick Hughes was true, and that what he alleged to have happened did actually occur, there would have been ground for much of the vehement criticism levelled by Mr. Costello at the conduct of the proceedings. He surmised that in the background the object of that criticism was to suggest that the Court would find some loophole for letting out of prison a man who had been treated in a manner alleged to have been an outrage upon justice. Mr. Costello suggested that for a man treated as he had described there was no redress except that Court.

In fact, if such things had occurred—which they had not—the aggrieved person had a right of remedy at the hands of the Executive Council.

INFERENCE.

The Attorney-General, continuing, said that the vital point was the alleged writing of the letter by Hughes, and added that all through the case D.O. McNamara swore that the letter had been written by Hughes, because he believed that he had seen him writing it.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne—That it was a matter of inference?

The Attorney-General—Yes, inference, because of the position which he occupied in the room.

Summarising the evidence at the Tribunal, the Attorney-General said that McNamara swore that when they entered the room where the letter was to be written Hughes requested McNamara to sit down near the fireplace. When he did so Hughes went over to a desk at a window and sat down, with his back towards McNamara, and went through the motions of writing, so much so that McNamara believed that Hughes wrote there and then the letter which he handed to him immediately he stood up.

The Tribunal apparently came to the conclusion that the document had been placed on the table beforehand, and that Hughes, with his back to McNamara, went through the form of writing, so as to create the impression in McNamara's mind that he was actually writing the letter which he handed to McNamara on standing up from the table.

Continuing, the Attorney-General argued that the order of the Tribunal contained all that was necessary, inasmuch as it set out the conviction and sentence. Convictions by the Tribunal were in an entirely different category from convictions by other "inferior courts," and there was no remedy against them by way of habeas corpus or certiorari. The only redress was an appeal to the Executive Council.

Before the rising of the Court, Mr. Justice Sullivan said that there were other cases in the judges' lists for the next day, and he asked what counsel wished to be done in regard to this case.

Mr. Overend said that the liberty of the subject was of paramount interest, and he had to request the Court to resume the hearing of the case of Patrick Hughes.

Mr. Justice Sullivan said that that would be done, and the further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

KERRY DANCE HALL BURNED.

THREE MEN SENT TO PRISON.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

TRALEE, Thursday.

At Tralee Circuit Court to-day, Edward Flynn, Brackhill, Castlemaine, pleaded guilty to setting fire to a dance hall in Castlemaine, and subsequently gave evidence against George Boyle and Thomas Knightly, Castlemaine, who were similarly charged with arson and with incitement to arson.

Jeremiah Daly said that he built a dance hall in Castlemaine for £281. His hall was burned on the night of 20th June, 1933, and he got £251 compensation under the Malicious Injury Act.

Edward Flynn gave evidence of burning the hall, with Knightly and Boyle. He said that Boyle and he entered the hall while Knightly kept guard outside with a shotgun. They sprinkled the hall with petrol and set it alight. On the following Sunday night witness met Knightly and Boyle at Boyle's hall, where Knightly gave him 5s. for carrying out the burning. Later Knightly gave him £2, and told him he was to deny the rumour that was going around about the burning. On 27th February witness sent a note to Boyle asking him and Knightly to come to his house. They came, and by arrangement a conversation between the three of them was overheard by two guards.

Guards O'Donoghue and O'Doherty gave evidence of overhearing the conversation, which referred to the burning of the hall.

In evidence, both defendants denied having anything to do with the burning of the hall. William Boyle, Joe Boyle, Frank Boyle, Daniel O'Shea and Edward Hickey gave evidence in support of an alibi.

The jury found Knightly and Boyle guilty on both counts, with a strong recommendation to mercy.

Judge McElligott—Why do you recommend them to mercy?

There was no answer from the jury, and the judge said that the accused men had deprived the ratepayers of £251 and costs. He would, however, act on the recommendation, because it was a great thing to see a jury conscious of its duty and discharging it. He intended to sentence Edward Flynn to three years' penal servitude, but in view of the jury's recommendation he would sentence the three of them to twelve months' imprisonment.

UNIVERSITY REPRESENTATION.

ABOLITION BILL PASSED BY DAIL.

STRONG PROTESTS AGAINST THE MEASURE.

MR. S. O'KELLY, Minister for Local Government, moved in the Dail yesterday the fifth stage of the Constitution (Amendment No. 23) Bill, which provides for the abolition of University representation.

On the motion "that the bill do now pass,"

Professor O'SULLIVAN (U.I., Kerry) said that it was a strange thing that the man whose name was attached to the bill (the Chancellor of the National University) was not present to justify the bill. The Vice-President (Mr. O'Kelly) had admitted that there was no mandate, and said that Convocation passed a resolution in favour of the principle of the bill. Convocation, however, did not represent the body of the Universities as a whole.

Everyone knew that the people who had voted in the Universities could not have voted in any other constituency. There was no question of a double vote. The most that could be said was that there was disproportion as to numbers, but that was not sufficient reason for interference. If the bill passed they would see that House being reduced to a mere registration machine to give passive approval to ill-considered measures of the Government.

DEPUTY'S PROTEST.

Professor W. THRIFT (Ind., Dublin University) said that he rose to protest against the bill. He did not propose to recapitulate his arguments given during the other stages of the bill. It was quite obvious that argument was wasted, and that it was not a matter for argument. That was quite obvious from the complete absence of argument for the bill, so far as the Vice-President and any of his supporters were concerned. He quite felt for the Vice-President in that matter, because he did not think that he had any real heart for the bill. He had done the best he could for it, but in his (speaker's) recollection there never was a bill that went through that House with such slender attempts at argument in its favour.

It was quite true that the bill was introduced under the plea that democracy required as far as possible equal value for all votes, but the underlying fallacy in that was exploded almost immediately, and it was shown that democracy did not require any such thing. Apart, however, from the democratic argument to which Deputy O'Sullivan had just given expression, there was one simple fact which showed how utterly impossible anything of that kind was of realisation in a country with proportional representation like theirs and as Deputy O'Sullivan went on to point out more strongly, the other bill which had accompanied that in its passage through the House went definitely and directly on the lines of making that discrepancy between the values of individual votes more marked than it had been before.

VALUELESS VOTES.

The Vice-President knew perfectly well that in almost every constituency in the State there were hundreds, if not thousands, of votes which were of no value at all, which utterly failed to succeed in getting any representation whatever for the point of view held by those minorities in the constituencies. The result was that hundreds remained without having any say in the selection of representatives for the Parliament. He tried to compare the ratio of the voters in University constituencies required to obtain a representative for a number of other constituencies and got out a mathematical relation.

He was trying to get a ratio between the two. It was impossible to get a ratio between nothing and something, and the fact was that, there were hundreds, if not thousands, whose votes have no value whatever. This was a reasonable attempt to give that minority some representation, which, he held, might correspond with its weight in numbers and value.

DISFRANCHISEMENT.

The Minister had omitted to point out in any of the discussions that the question was not whether Universities should be disfranchised or not, but as to whether Universities should be entitled to a voice there or to a voice in the Oireachtas. He ventured to say that since the State was founded there was never a question of disfranchising Universities altogether. That argument was completely vitiated by the fact that the Government had just put through a bill which was designed to bring to an end the other part of the Oireachtas and to leave the Dail as the sole constituent of the Oireachtas. There was no question then as to whether University representation should lead to this position in the Senate or Dail, because with the abolition of the Senate they were completely disfranchised in the management of the State. Therefore he said that attempted argument was completely unsound.

"I regret to say," continued Professor Thrift, "that I am forced eventually to the view that Fianna Fail are suffering from a party outlook merely. They cannot see the difference between a party outlook and a national outlook. If Fianna Fail has a national outlook, whether they are aware of it or not, there is a definite distinction. A party should not be the first thing. Country should be the first, and a time will come when Fianna Fail also will recognise that. I regret to say that the Vice-President admitted that this was a party measure—that it was done for party purposes. It is a regrettable thing for the country that the question of University representation has been put upon a party platform. Fianna Fail have declared that they were going to remove it. The chief Oppoosition Party say that they will restore it. Instead of that being a question which the country, as a whole, could decide, it is going to be decided whether one party or the other is in control at the moment."

CONDEMNED TO ISOLATION.

"That," continued Professor Thrift, "is no platform on which to put a big question as to whether Universities are to take a vital partr in the life of the country, and have some weight in that matter or not. They do not concern themselves with parties; it is for the country they are anxious, the country's vitality and the country's good, and I take it from that, that it is a sad pity that the outlook of Fianna Fail is limited to such party considerations, and that they cannot see—I do not say that they will not see—that this is a question which involves the whole country, not the twenty-six counties, not Fianna Fail, but the whole of Ireland. By this measure, and other such measures, they are condemning the twenty-six counties to isolation from the six counties, which it would have been and might have been in their power to put an end to when they had a bigger outlook and wider vision as to what Ireland wanted, and not what Fianna Fail wanted."

THE NATIONAL UNIVERSITY.

Mrs. CONCANNON (F.F., National University) said that the majority of the graduates of the National University had sent her there to show the world that they were behind Mr. Eamonn de Valera in his fight for the country's rights.

Deputy McGilligan had accused her of having neglected her duties to her constituency, but her ideas in regard to the functions and duties of University representatives did not coincide with those of Deputy McGilligan.

THE MAIN ISSUE.

Professor ALTON (Indpt., Dublin Univ.) said that the main issue of the bill was the disfranchisement of the Universities. He felt that no matter what he said it would be useless, for there was no plea and no argument that could be brought now that would soften the heart of the soft-spoken Vice-President. The deed had been done long before the bill had come into force. The Vice-President had himself admitted that he had no direct mandate from the country, although he tried to indicate that he had an indirect one. University representation was to be wiped out in the name of democracy, but were the methods by which the bill was produced democratic methods? He was sorry that the bill must inevitably pass.

As a University man, he, like other graduates, was proud of the traditions of Dublin University, and they were particularly proud of the right, the privilege and the honour it had obtained more than three hundred years ago of sending two Burgesses to the Irish Parliament. He did not say that their life or existence in those centuries was stainless, but there were a few merits, a few great traditions which people nowadays were too ready to forget. In those early days, and down to the days before the Union—which the representatives of the University bitterly opposed—there were great figures, one of whom, William Molyneux, was mentioned the other night by Deputy T. Kelly. The list was a long one—and not completely dishonourable or dishonoured. He recalled in his student days, saying that when they had a Parliament of their own in Dublin it would be good for the country, and some of his friends who heard him said: "You will not get much. You will be disfranchised." He was disappointed that he had lived to see the day when an Irish Parliament in Ireland would pay them less respect than in the time of Mr. Henry Grattan. He was afraid the beliefs he held were shattered, and he regretted for other reasons the action of the Dail. He regretted it for the sake of Fianna Fail itself, which had some ideals which he shared.

SUSPICION AND DISTRUST.

There was a number of Trinity men who were not out of sympathy with Government policy and with the Government party, and this action on the part of the Government would create a feeling of dismay amongst these people. There were others who were Irish, not Anglo-Irish, but who did not see eye to eye with Fianna Fail, but who could very easily be won. What the Government had done now would create suspicion and distrust in these people. This bill would have far-reaching and disruptive consequences, which he deplored.

Mr. CORRY (F.F., Cork East) said he could not understand the attitude of the University representatives, and asked how could they justify one member being elected with a quota of 900 votes, whilst others required nine or ten thousand. There was no reason why one individual in the State should have ten times the voting power of another.

STATEMENTS CONTRADICTED.

Dr. ROWLETTE (Ind., Dublin University) said that in the Press that supported the Government the arguments in favour of the bill were the same as those they had in the House—that Universities were over-represented. The leading article which appeared in the Irish Press on the morning after the introduction of the bill went one better than Government spokesmen in the House. It invented a number of statements which had no relation to facts, but which were put forward to give justification for this Government measure. He did not think that in a short newspaper article he had ever seen more closely packed mis-statements of fact than were put forward by that organ. It stated that in Trinity College three Independent Unionists were returned unopposed in each of the two recent elections. The only statement that was true in that was that three Deputies were returned unopposed. No Independent Unionist had ever been returned from Trinity College to that House. No Unionist had been returned from Trinity College. As regards the present representatives, it was untrue to say that they were Unionists—it was probable that they had been as long Nationalists as the members on the Government side of the House.

The article further stated that the clause reserving six seats in the Dail for University representation was inserted in London at the instance of the British. That clause, said Dr. Rowlette, was not inserted in London, but was inserted in the Dail.

The article further stated that Trinity College always returned representatives opposed to Home Rule, but that again must be untrue to the knowledge of those who had published the statement, because it was well known that one of the members who represented Dublin University at Westminster at the time the Treaty was signed had entered Parliament as a Home Ruler, and that his services were of considerable help in introducing the condition of affairs which led to the possibility of the Truce and the signing of the Treaty.

UNIVERSITY AND POLITICS.

Dr. Rowlette went on to say that during the debate certain advice had been given to Dublin University—that its sole function in this country was an educational function, and that it had no part whatever as a University in relation to politics. That was advice which had been given before, and had been refused before. It was given in that House a couple of weeks ago by the Minister for Industry and Commerce. It was given 140 years ago by John Fitzgibbon, Earl of Clare, and it was not accepted. Among those graduates who did not accept the advice then was Wolfe Tone. Fifty years later Thomas Davis and John Mitchel did not accept it. It had been a tradition of Dublin University that it should be interested in politics, as well as in other affairs, that concerned the interest of the State. The advice would be neglected now as it was 140 years ago.

Dublin University had not neglected her own country, and had nothing to fear from the Irish public. Dublin University did, however, demand that her sons should be free to give their services to their country in whatever way they liked, and, in particular, giving political service to their country.

One could assume that the bill would pass the Dail, and he would point out that the Dail was thus about to take a step which would diminish its value as a debating and legislative Assembly, decrease its reputation to the world, and, perhaps, more important, take away the last link in the unity of Ireland.

NO CASE FOR THE BILL.

Dr. T. F. O'HIGGINS (U.I., Leix-Offaly) said that Deputy Corry was opposed to University representation, and had made no case whatever, except to slander his political opponents. Lenin was opposed to university representation, but would support his case with sensible argument without slandering his political opponents. If there was any case to be made against university representation it should be made, and not associated with slanders about religion and politics.

Fianna Fail had not said anything about the bill when they circularised National University graduates all over the world for their votes. Were Irish graduates who had to go abroad to be treated as aliens, and not given even the privilege of a postal vote, which might never arrive?

HEATED SCENE.

Mr. P. McGILLIGAN (U.I., National University) said that he had not the advantage of listening to Deputy Corry speaking on two particularly suitable subjects—namely, "thugs" and "mugs." He gathered, however, that Deputy Corry did say that there were some university people who might be regarded as "mugs" because they went abroad to teach Christianity. He (Mr. McGilligan) was not sure whether some of those people when they read that speech of Deputy Corry might not say that there was room for some of them at home to teach some people Christianity.

Mr. CORRY—They would want to teach you.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—Not Christianity or justice.

Mr. CORRY—You never knew one or the other.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—If there is one man in this House who ought to forget the politics of his forefathers it is particularly and especially Deputy Corry.

Mr. CORRY—My forefathers were decenter men than yours. I know them anyhow, but you don't know who yours were.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—They were known. Your forefathers ——

The SPEAKER—This does not arise.

Mr. CORRY—My people were respected, but yours were not.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—I admit they were known, but we will quarrel about the respect.

Mr. CORRY—It is not the first time that that hound has hurled it across the House at me, and it was hurled back in his teeth, the dying mongrel.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—Apparently it goes home. I don't mind leaving it there to be introduced on another occasion when it would be in order.

THE UNIVERSITY'S SIN.

Continuing his speech, Mr. McGILLIGAN said that the real object of the bill was revealed by the Vice-President when he implied that if Trinity College representatives in the House had voted oftener for Fianna Fail there would have been no question of challenging them as representatives of a privileged class.

Trinity College representatives had voted too often against the Government, and so they had got to go. Sacrifice had been called for. The Vice-President admitted that they had no mandate for the bill, but despite that the Constitution had to be hacked, and they were to get the votes of the two deputies who had ridden into that House on the backs of the so-called privileged franchise.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

Mr. SEAN T. O'KELLY, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, replying, said that there was one person in the House who could not, and should not, pretend to speak on behalf of the mass of the people, and that was Deputy McGilligan. He had never stood before the people, nor had he been elected to any position of honour in this country. He had stood on a very restricted franchise of, roughly, 3,000 people, and had got elected as a University representative, but that did not entitle him to speak for the mass of the people, either on his own behalf or on behalf of his party. His (the Minister's) party had the mandate necessary to voice the view of the great majority of the people. There was no measure introduced by Mr. M'Gilligan or any member of his Government that had the same mandate behind it as this or any other measure introduced by the present Government. It was true that they had not a direct mandate, but neither had the previous Government for amending the Constitution seventeen times.

Proceeding, the Minister said that the question of university representation was one of principle, and it was introduced there as such. The view of both sides on principle, not on personalities, was considered on the matter, and he thought it was put forward first by a graduate of Trinity College.

Professor ALTON—Not representing the university.

The MINISTER said that was so. Proceeding, he said that he had honour and respect for what had been done by graduates of Trinity College to help national feeling and sentiment and bring honour and credit to this country. Trinity College being the Alma Mater of those men whom all sides honoured to-day, she shared in the honour. He did not agree that it was because of the inspiration they received there that these men were as national or as patriotic as their lives showed them to be, but all honour and glory to the college from which they came.

Professor THRIFT—Yet you do not want to hear what the universities think on questions of the day.

Mr. O'KELLY said that he was not against any graduate of Trinity College coming into that House. The question of being for or against university representation was another matter.

Professor THRIFT said that a graduate representing his university spoke for it, not for himself.

Mr. O'KELLY—I certainly would not like to think that every vote that has been given by Dublin University representatives has been given on behalf of the university.

The motion that Constitution (Amendment No. 23) Bill, 1934, do finally pass was then put, and on a division carried by 51 votes to 29.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE.

IRISH FOR STUDENTS.

The second stage and remaining stages of the University College (Dublin) Bill was then passed without discussion, together with the necessary money resolution, and the bill was certified as a money bill.

The MINISTER for FINANCE (Mr. MacEntee) explained that in November, 1931, the then Minister for Finance, on behalf of the Executive Council, had promised a deputation from University College to give an extra endowment up to £3,000 for salaries and extra outlay in the College for the requirements and extension of the Department of Modern Irish. The purpose of this bill was to give effect to that undertaking. Conferences had taken place between the Minister for Education and the College authorities, and the authorities had agreed to bring the knowledge of spoken Irish up to a satisfactory standard. Students desiring to be admitted to degrees of Arts, Commerce, Science and Agricultural Science would have to pass an oral examination in Irish to prove that they could speak Irish fluently and correctly. The students in Medicine, Engineering, Dentistry and Architecture would have to prove their ability to discuss simple technical problems in Irish. The same conditions would apply to law students as to Arts students as they had first to obtain an Arts degree.

Provision was being made to exempt foreign students from these requirements.

OBITUARY.

MR. PADRAIC O BROLCHAIN.

The death has taken place at his residence, "Dun Bride," Howth, Co. Dublin, of Mr. Padraic O Brolchain, Chief Executive Officer of National Education. Born at Carndonagh, Inishowen, County Donegal, fifty-eight years ago, Mr. O Brolchain came to Dublin as a young man and entered the Civil Service as a member of the staff of the Commissioner of National Education. When the National Health Insurance Commission was formed he was transferred to this branch of the Service, and later to the Department of Education. With the establishment of the Provisional Government in 1922 he was appointed Chief Executive Officer of National Education by Mr. Fionan Lynch, T.D., the then Minister for Education. His chief ideal was the Gaelicisation of the Free State schools, and he worked earnestly to this purpose. A life-long Gael, Mr. O Brolchain was closely identified with the Gaelic League from its foundation, and acted as adjudicator at many feiseanna throughout the country. A close friend of the late Mr. Arthur Griffith and of Mr. William Rooney, he contributed to the United Irishman and other Irish literary journals, although, as a civil servant, these literary activities had to be carried on sub rosa. Mr. O Brolchain married Miss Killeen, of Clonbur, County Mayo, and had a family of six sons, the eldest of whom, Cillin, is at present a lecturer at University College, Galway. He was a most industrious man, always earnest in furthering the cause of the Irish language, and in his dealings with the national teachers always tempered justice with mercy, and was always on the friendliest terms with them.

TELEPHONE TRAFFIC INCREASE.

TELEGRAPH SERVICE DECLINING.

When the Civil Service Commission of Inquiry sat in the Boardroom of the Department of Agriculture yesterday, Mr. Joseph Brennan, Chairman, presiding, evidence was given by Miss E. Little (telephonist), and Miss M. Quinn (phonograms) to the effect that there had been a large increase in telephone business, and especially in foreign telephone messages, owing to the imposition of tariffs. There were also a large number of foreign telegrams being sent over the telephone by the Government. For all this work there was not a sufficient staff to avoid delay in attending to calls.

Telegraph offices in the country, it was stated, are being slowly converted into telephone offices. There had been too much cutting down of the staff to the inconvenience of the public.

Miss Little complained of the long hours of standing necessary in the case of supervisors. The Government introduced British ideas, but nothing had been done to introduce adequate machinery or increase the staff. They had eight hours work daily, with forty minutes for lunch.

Mr. E. J. King, President, and Mr. P. J. Timoney, hon. secretary of the Postmasters' Association, stated that they represented 55 head postmasters and 34 sub-office postmasters, all of whom are established civil servants. They stated that a lot of the time of the headquarters staff appears to be expended in minute criticism of the work of head postmasters, which tends to stifle initiative and retard the efforts of postmasters. A further development of this system of intensive central control is the elaborate personal inspections of head offices by headquarters' officers. Inspections should be directed to the essential features of Post Office work, which are mainly concerned with the provision and maintenance of an efficient service to the public. A fair proportion of the inspectorial or survey staff should be recruited from the postmasters' class. The Association saw no justification for the exclusion of postmasters from the positions mentioned. The postal delivery service in rural areas cost about £300,000 a year, and the telegraph service, which is declining year by year, is maintained at a considerable loss. It was suggested by the Association that the losses on such gratuitous services to the public should be borne generously by the State.

The Commission adjourned until 10.45 a.m. to-day.

POISON REGULATIONS.

A meeting of the Committee of the Irish Game Protection Association was held at their offices, 110 Grafton street, Dublin, yesterday. The O'Mahony, T.D., presided, and there were also present:—Mr. A. Loftus-Bryan, Mr. C. H. FitzHerbert, Colonel C. D. Guinness, Mr. W. S. Hayes, Mr. R. Meredith, Mr. W. H. F. Verschoyle, Mr. C. J. Bourchier, and the Secretary, Mr. B. J. Newcombe.

The Committee had under consideration the question of the Partridge Prohibition Order as for 1934, when definite recommendations as to the open season were decided upon.

Correspondence with the Deputy Commissioner of the Garda Siochana was read on the subject of the laying of poison on lands and the conditions operating under the present Poison and Pharmacy Acts. The Committee consider that a special permit from the Garda Siochana should be obtained by persons obtaining poison, and that the permit should only be issued for a limited amount and for a specified time; good reasons for the requirements to be furnished by the applicant to the Garda Siochana.

Correspondence was read with the Minister for Justice re the issue of game dealers' licences in the Saorstat, a list of licences so issued being provided to the Association.

CORODO'S JULY CUP.

Bright Bird takes Princess of Wales's Stakes.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWMARKET, Thursday.

THE most important race was the Princess of Wales's Stakes, which Lord Astor won with Bright Bird, who was second to Duplicate in the Gold Vase at Ascot and here was greatly favoured by the weights.

His jockey, Fox, tried from the start to make the weight tell. Going off in front at a strong gallop, he made all the running, and, increasing his lead in the last half-mile, he finally won by five lengths from Black Devil, with Valerius, a head away, third.

Thus the first three were all three-year-olds, and all claimed the maiden allowances. Behind them came the four-year-old filly, Cotoneaster, fourth, and the four-year-old gelding, The Blue Boy, fifth. Neither could give away the weight at the pace at which the race was run.

Bright Bird is by the French sire, Biribi, and Lord Astor's experiment of sending a number of mares to France in the hope of finding some out-crosses has not so far been attended with any conspicuous success. This was a good race to win, but Bright Bird only carried the minimum weight, and he is a long way removed from classic standards.

An Experiment that Failed.

Lord Derby mentioned in his speech the other day that he only kept a stud in France in the hope of discovering out-crosses, and admitted that his experiment had been a complete failure. I cannot recall anyone in modern times who has done a great deal by returning blood that has been in France for several generations, except the late Mr. Edward Kennedy, when he bought Roi Herode, who quickly achieved immortality by siring The Tetrarch.

At Ascot we saw a colt by Colorado—Felicitation win the Gold Cup, the acknowledged championship over a distance of ground. Here this afternoon we saw another colt by Colorado, Col. Lundgren's Coroado, win the July Cup from a field composed of the best sprinters in training, with the exception of Myrobella.

Judging by the way in which he won this afternoon, by two lengths and three lengths from Greenore and Strathcarron, with Satyr and Solenoid behind him, Coroado is the champion sprinter at the present time.

He won the Wokingham Stakes all the way. He did not win this all the way; for the immensely speedy Satyr led him for nearly five furlongs. But he flew past Lord Carnarvon's colt in the sixth, and the challenge of Greenore was completely ineffective.

A Real Champion.

It was a clear-cut and decisive victory, and the neat little colt, who only cost 300 guineas and odd as a yearling, and was racing in the first week of his two-year-old season, is a real champion at the present time.

I cannot recall any horse who was sired in the same season the winner of the Gold Cup and the July Cup, the latter of which is now regarded as one of the most important, if not the most important, of weight-for-age events run over six furlongs.

The French colt, Makila, who was second to Coroado at Ascot, seemed to be feeling the effects of the hard ground, and ran well below his Wokingham form.

All the racing was good here to-day, even the opening event, the Haughley Selling Plate. A favourite was found here in Community, trained by Sam Darling for Sir Reginald Bonsor. She was run out of it and beaten half a length by the Tolgus filly, Deceptive, on whose good form I have before commented. She was bought in after the race for 740 guineas.

A Claimed Horse.

Everyone now seems to have discovered that under a rule made a long time ago anyone can claim a horse out of a selling race for the value of the stake, plus the entered selling price. There was a stampede to claim Community after this event. No fewer than six people aspired to take her. Lots had to be drawn, and Cecil Langlands, who trains a few horses at Epsom, drew the winning number; so he gets the filly for £300, or less than half of what it cost to buy in the winner.

The Exeter Stakes only attracted four runners, and the Aga Khan won it with Alykhan, the colt by Diophon out of Teresina, who had been third at Ascot when his much less fancied stable companion, Theft, won. He made all the running this afternoon and won by two lengths and a short-head from Godolphin and Gleamer, with Lord Derby's Fairhaven last.

The Aga Khan's Luck.

Thus His Highness has won the two principal two-year-old races of the meeting—the July Stakes with Hilla and now the Exeter Stakes—so that his Ascot luck is still holding.

Fifteen fillies ran for the Girton Handicap, and when Grey But Gay came into the dip a long way in front, and alone, it seemed as if Lord Astor was going to win another race. But she stopped up the hill, and was caught and beaten a short-head by the favourite, Mr. J. M. Clayton's Lost Soul, a filly by Solario out of the Orby mare, Orlass, who has bred some good winners at Sledmere.

Half a length away, Love Tie was third, and on her present mark in the handicap, which is a low one, this filly should soon win a race.

Selections.

The racing here to-morrow will be quiet. There will be only a few runners for the Fulbourne Stakes, in which the Aga Khan's game colt, VERMEIL II., may give the weight to Red Biddy.

There will be even fewer runners for the Ellesmere Stakes, of which MISANTHROPE, for whom this event has been chosen in preference to the London Cup at Alexandra Park on Saturday, may be the best.

If SPIRITUELLE II. leaves the gate with the others she could win the Waterbeach Handicap, but she cannot be depended on to do this.

MARK TIME should beat the rest of the big field that will oppose her in the Princess Stakes.

Johnstone Returns to France.

It is now necessary to say a valedictory word respecting W. R. Johnstone, who came here from France at the beginning of the season to ride the horses of Lord Glanely. Johnstone returns to France on Tuesday, his English engagement having been terminated by mutual agreement, and will resume as first jockey to M. Wertheimer, for whom he rode last season.

Since he came here in March Johnstone has ridden, I think, six winners in all, four of which were for Lord Glanely. He won the Two Thousand Guineas, but not the Derby, on Colombo. He had much success in France last season, and it is to be hoped that he will resume riding winners there.

GALTEE MORE.

RED BIDDY NAPPED.

Osman Pasha may Win the Ellesmere Stakes.

THE final day of the Newmarket Meeting has no event of really outstanding importance on the card, but interest should be maintained. The Fulbourne Stakes has often been won by a horse destined to go on and make Turf history. Last year it was won by Colombo, but this time there does not seem to be a horse in the field capable of putting up such a two-year-old record as he. Red Biddy, a daughter of Tetratema, has not the grey livery so common in the offspring of that famous horse, for she is a chestnut, but she seems to have inherited plenty of his speed.

She was not expected by the majority at Ascot to beat the Beckhampton crack Caretta, but from an inconspicuous position at half-way she put in an astounding burst of speed up the hill to get second place. I gained the impression that she must have been held up by the others in the early stages, and that with better luck in the running she would have gone closer to, if not beaten, Caretta. Major McCalmont, who has kept up a happy association with "Atty" Persse and Steve Donoghue for many years, rarely owns a bad 'un, and Red Biddy should certainly prove a creditable wearer of his scarlet and blue.

The Aga Khan's Vermeil II. has very good form and might prove one of his best classic contenders next year, but the son of Blenheim has plenty to do to-day. With 9st. 7lb., he had to concede 9lb. and upwards to the others, and, good as he is, I doubt his being quite as good as that.

Although he has yet to run on a racecourse, Powerful Prince has earned for himself a real reputation at Newmarket for the way he has been going in preparatory gallops, and he is quite likely to help to make a thrilling finish. Anne Lovely filly may be beaten on the rise. I feel a deal of confidence in

RED BIDDY.

With Easton, Homily and Spend a Penny all standing down in the Ellesmere Stakes, the race becomes less interesting, but more open.

OSMAN PASHA

has slightly better form than the other probables, and Gordon Richards may get him home in front.

Good weighting has also given the Waterbeach Handicap an open appearance. Figaro, Clustine, Silkstar, Loot and Almond Hill all have strong claims, and if I give a slight preference, it is because he has done so well on firm going.

For the Princess' Stakes I take

FLYING ORDERS,

naming Mumtaz Begum as the alternative.

ARMAGNAC,

now a stronger finisher, might win again in the Milton Handicap.

We have some good platers engaged in the Ixworth Selling Plate, and the best of them is who will be running over her favourite distance.

The distance of the Ellesmere Stakes will suit Alcazar, and, if doing his best, Alexander could win, but my vote goes to who has done well since running at Ascot.

Despite his big weight, Figaro will be hard to beat for the Waterbeach Handicap, while Spirituelle II., who was badly left in the Wokingham Stakes, should figure prominently. Clustine is better for his race at Ascot, but who, I understand, runs again should win

The Fulbourne Stakes should be won by

VERMEIL II.

A big field will turn out for the Princess Stakes. I expect Flying Orders, Mark Time and to fight out the finish, and I rely upon the last-named

MUMTAZ BEGUM (next best)

Sou' Wester, Beacon Hill, Conway and will be seen out for the Milton Handicap, and the last-named should win.

ANOTHER DEAD-HEAT.

A Brackenstown Double at Bellewstown.

THE hard state of the going at the training grounds, as well as on the racecourse, had a detrimental effect on the second day's racing at Bellewstown. The programme, as it appeared in the morning papers, promised to provide excellent racing, but in the interim many horses had developed lameness or were sore, with the result that the number of runners was greatly reduced, and, worst of all, the King's Plate, for which four runners had been declared, fizzled out into a walk-over for High Prestige. It is to be feared that if the present drought continues many other meetings will suffer in a like manner.

The Crockafotha Hurdle Race, with which racing was resumed, was an open affair, all the runners being fancied. It provided a good finish between Wednesday's winner, Spanish Red, and Slanthe, and the latter just stayed on long enough to win by a head. The winner is by Aquafortis, out of Lady Ben, and like all Mr. E. Delany's horses, was bred by her owner, whose colours have been seen at Bellewstown meeting probably for longer than those of any other owner.

ANOTHER DEAD-HEAT.

Woology proved a false favourite for the Corporation Plate, for he never held out any hopes for his supporters, and another desperately close finish resulted in a dead-heat between Coollattin and Mount Essex.

Another exciting race followed when the penalised Strolling Witch was beaten by Cottage Owl in the Stewards' Steeplechase. Both jockeys were hard at their mounts for the last half-mile, and they came close together a couple of times. The Stewards were then called upon to decide an objection for boring and not keeping a straight course, and this they overruled.

MR. USSHER'S DOUBLE.

Mr. P. D. Mathews, who lives in the vicinity of the course, has not many horses in training, and it would consequently give him all the greater pleasure to win a race at this meeting, as he did with Toga. The winner is a daughter of Tolgus and Gaunt Lady, and won a race as a two-year-old last back-end, this being her only previous score. She was ridden by the South of Ireland amateur, Mr. J. H. de Bromhead, who now rides all the Brackenstown horses in this class of race.

Biddles won his third race off the reel when beating Derryvullen and others in the Leggan Hall Steeplechase, and completed double events for Mr. H. I. Ussher, as trainer, and W. T. O'Grady as jockey. Details:—

POLO.

A HEAVY-SCORING MATCH.

TWELVE GOALS SHARED AT NINE ACRES.

ELM PARK .... 6 GREENMOUNT 6

In a five-chukkar match at the Nine Acres, Phoenix Park, yesterday, Greenmount and Elm Park divided twelve goals. A feature of a keenly-contested match was the good combination by Major O'Rorke and Major Kirkwood for Elm Park. Their stickwork and backing up were splendid.

There was, however, nothing better than Mr. Slocock's good riding-off, which paved the way for some of the Greenmount goals, while Mr. J. Martin was in his best form at back, and saved his side on several occasions, twice clearing as the ball was almost on the line.

Greenmount began with a flourish, and in two minutes had taken the lead, Mr. Slocock being the scorer; but, settling down quickly, Elm Park were soon on terms, Mr. Walsh hitting through, and before the bell Major O'Rorke gave Elm Park the lead. Greenmount had the better of the play in the second period, due principally to the good combination of Messrs. Martin and Slocock; and Mr. Dixon, who played in the second and fourth chukkars in place of Mr. Magee, soon secured the equaliser, while just before the bell Mr. Slocock gave Greenmount the lead.

The third chukkar was the best of the five, and here Elm Park were definitely on top. Major Kirkwood placed beautifully across and close to the goal for Mr. Phibbs to hit the equalising goal, and immediately afterwards Major O'Rorke gave his side a lead, which Mr. Phibbs increased before the end of the session—5-3. Mr. Slocock scored Greenmount's fourth goal early in the fourth chukkar, but Major O'Rorke scored again to keep his side two in front—6-4. Mr. W. Fitzgerald replaced Major O'Rorke in the final chukkar, during which Mr. Martin scored two splendid goals to leave the scores level.

Elm Park—Mr. D. P. Phibbs, Mr. D. Walsh, Mr. W. Fitzgerald (1 chukkar), Major J. O'Rorke (4 chukkars), Major T. W. Kirkwood.

Greenmount—Mr. R. H. Usher, Mr. M. J. Dixon (2 chukkars), Mr. W. Magee (3 chukkars), Mr. S. Slocock, Mr. J. Martin.

MORE GOOD PRICES.

Well-Bred Yearlings Again In Demand.

THE First July Sales were brought to a successful conclusion yesterday, the total for the 33 yearlings sold being 23,235 guineas. Top price of 4,800 guineas was paid by the Liverpool sportsman, Mr. James Shand, for Lady Barbara Smith's brown colt by the Derby winner, Manna, out of the famous mare, Verdict (dam of Versicle and Dictum). Mr. Shand, it will be remembered, made several expensive purchases at Doncaster last September.

Lord St. Davids sold seven without reserve for 9,720 guineas, and, in spite of three making small sums, the average worked out at 1,388 guineas. The Manton trainer, J. Lawson, took the Foxlaw—Celandine colt at 3,500 guineas, and Brigadier Tomkinson the filly by the King's horse, Friar Marcus, out of Aloe at 3,000 guineas, the purchase being made for His Majesty.

The Yorkshire breeder, Mr. McIntyre, of Theakston Hall, submitted two yearlings from among the first crop of his unbeaten young sire, Thyestes (a son of Tetratema), and had the satisfaction of selling them for 2,980 guineas. The grey filly out of Molly (dam of Homily) was secured by Fred Pratt at 2,200 guineas; the other, a bay colt out of Giroflee, going to Mr. Shand at 780 guineas.

The aggregate for the week's business was 48,105 guineas.

GERMAN POLICE AT THE DEPOT.

STIFF TEST FOR GARDA TO-NIGHT.

The most attractive feature of Garda week, the contest against the German police, will take place in the Dépôt square to-night, commencing at 7.45. The visiting team is exceptionally strong, and, although our men are nearly always at their best on the big occasion, they will do well, indeed, to gain a winning margin this time. Every one of the visitors, although all young men, have fine records, and have beaten most of the best-known Continental amateurs in the last couple of years.

Campe was an Olympic Games finalist in 1932; Kyfuss is cruiser-weight champion of Germany; Eckstein has a victory over Ramch to his credit; Hornemann, on his last appearance over here, beat Garda J. Chase; while Mietschke, when a light-weight, beat E. Smith. As the visitors are all tough and hard hitters, the bouts should be most attractive. Our main hopes rest with Smith, Murphy, Hearns and Mulligan, and the return of Murphy to the ring after a long absence will be one of the most interesting features of the night.

THIRD TEST MATCH.

Paynter Asked to be Present at Old Trafford To-day.

THE third Test Match, commencing at Old Trafford, Manchester, to-day, may turn out to be the most important of the present series. With one win at Nottingham to Australia and one at Lord's to England, honours are so far even in this year's struggle for the "ashes."

Rain, often the bugbear of Test matches on the Manchester ground, may, of course, prove a spoil-sport. Of the long list of representative games played at Old Trafford, fully three-quarters have met with interference by rain.

Past results can have little bearing on the way the match is likely to go. England has won three of the fourteen Tests played at Old Trafford, Australia two, and eight have been left drawn, while in the other not a ball was bowled. That England has not been successful at Manchester since 1905 should in no way deter her players. They will remember that until this summer England had not won at Lord's for thirty-eight years.

Coming to personalities, it is heartening to Englishmen that R. E. S. Wyatt is absolutely fit again, and that Hammond, as demonstrated by a mighty innings against Kent this week, is back to his best form.

Australians are just as joyful about the recovery of Ponsford and Woodfull, and also the promise Bradman showed in the game with Surrey of a return to the form of which we know him capable

The doubts concerning the fitness of Clark, the Northants left-hander, have not yet been dispelled. Just before going to Manchester Sir Stanley Jackson, chairman of the Selection Committee, said: "Clark will, as invited, attend at Old Trafford to-morrow in readiness for selection of the England team. I have heard nothing more ocncerning any of the other players, and you can take it for granted that the team will be selected from the names announced."

Subsequently, however, the name of Paynter (Lancs) was added to the list of those asked to be present, but judging from what Sir Stanley Jackson said Paynter may not find a place in the England eleven. The teams will be chosen from the following:—

England—R. E. S. Wyatt (Warwick) (capt.), C. F. Walters (Worcester), G. O. Allen (Middlesex), Sutcliffe (Yorks), Hammond (Gloucester), Hendren (Middlesex), Leyland (Yorks), Ames (Kent), Verity (Yorks), Clark (Northants), Keeton (Notts), Hopwood (Lancs), Bowes (Yorks), and Paynter (Lancs).

Australia—W. M. Woodfull (capt.), D. G. Bradman, W. A. Brown, W. H. Ponsford, S. J. McCabe, L. S. Darling, A. C. Chipperfield, W. A. Oldfield, C. V. Grimmett, W. J. O'Reilly and T. W. Wall.

TO-DAY'S FIXTURE.

WATER POLO.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR NOMADS.

SANDYCOVE'S GOOD WIN AT BLACKROCK.

SANDYCOVE .... 4 DEVON NOMADS ... 1

Last evening the Devon team met with the first defeat of their tour at Blackrock Baths, from Sandycove. The Devonians did not play with the same verve as in their earlier games, but possibly the keen tackling of the Leinster champions was a factor in this respect. Sandycove played very well, and the game was fought at a good pace.

A penalty near half-time was converted by Allen. No less than four players, two on each side, were out for infringements when the penalty was awarded.

Strenuous play was again the order in the second half. Although Hilton played brilliantly, he was beaten three times, O'Brien (twice) and Fagan scoring. Halse scored for Nomads.

Sandycove—W. J. McCormick (captain); N. F. Judd, J. Allen; A. F. Horlacher; C. Fagan, L. O'Brien, and M. Kelly.

Devon Nomads—R. M. Hilton; L. C. Mortimer, R. Newcombe (captain); C. H. Halse, G. Bruce, A Thompson.

Referee—Mr. K. C. McCullough.

YACHTING.

EVENING RACE AT HOWTH.

A moderate and somewhat patchy S.E. breeze gave a run to the North mark and a beat, with a weathergoing tide, to Balscadden. Mimosa was the first 17-Footer away, but was blanketed by the boats behind, and was passed by Zaida on the run. She very nearly got in front again near Balscadden mark, but just failed, and a close race finished:—

GOLF.

ENTRIES POURING IN FOR IRISH OPEN.

SARAZEN AND KIRKWOOD COMING.

By Our Golf Correspondent.

THE latest news regarding the Irish Open Championship at Portmarnock on July 17th, 18th and 19th is very cheering.

Entries are pouring in and yesterday's big batch included those of Gene Sarazen, the Open and American Open champion of 1932, and Joe Kirkwood, who have arranged to play an exhibition match at Carlow on Sunday, July 15th, at 3.30.

So with Sarazen, Brews and Kirkwood in the field the championship will, for the first time, be given a strong international flavour.

I understand that none of the veterans, except Ted Ray, are coming.

WOMEN'S SEMI-FINALS.

Miss Round and Miss Jacobs in Wimbledon Final.

GREAT Britain for the first time in many years has a representative in both the singles final of the championships at Wimbledon, Miss Dorothy Round, the Midlands girl, yesterday repeated her achievement of twelve months ago in qualifying for the women's singles final when she beat Mme. R. Mathieu, of France, by 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 on the centre court. Miss Round's success followed that of Miss Helen Jacobs, the leading woman player in America, who was not called upon for anything in the nature of brilliance in overcoming Miss Joan Hartigan, the Australian girl, by 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Round's match was a mixture of scintillating shots and mediocre rallies. It consisted of three phases. Mme. Mathieu began with the idea of out-driving the English girl, and when she found that she was not the only one on the court with a powerful forehand, the Frenchwoman attempted to slow up the pace by lofting everything and inducing Miss Round to make mistakes. That policy, sound enough in conception, failed in execution, because Miss Round, although displaying commendable enterprise in going out for winning shots, never at any stage allowed her exuberance to overcome her discretion.

Miss Round, too, lasted the better, and after dropping the middle sets, in which only one of the twelve games went against the service, she went for her opponent's backhand corner with a fast cross-court drive, and followed up with crisp, angled volleys—a plan of campaign that completely disconcerted Mme. Mathieu.

WOMEN'S SINGLES—Semi-final.

(Holder—Mrs. F. S. Moody.)

Miss Helen Jacobs beat Miss J. Hartigan—6-2, 6-2.

H. O. Hopman and D. Prenn beat D. P. Turnbull and V. B. McGrath—4-6, 10-8, 6-4, 6-4.

J. Borotra and J. Brugnon beat R. N. Williams and S B. Wood—8-6, 6-2, 6-3.

I. G. Collins and F. H. D. Wilde beat Kirby and Miki—6-2, 7-5, 6-2.

TEAMS FOR NEXT WEEK'S MATCH.

MISS HARMAN SELECTED FOR IRELAND.

Miss J. Harman has been selected for the remaining place on the Irish team to meet England at Fitzwilliam next Monday and Tuesday. The teams are now as follow:—

Ireland—G. Lyttleton Rogers, E. A. McGuire, T. G. McVeagh, H. J. Ryan, Miss N. Stoker, Miss J. Harman.

England—H. G. N. Cooper, C. E. Hare, R. J. Ritchie, G. R. B. Meredith, Miss A. M. Yorke, Miss R. M. Hardwick.

Cooper and Ritchie are to stay on for the Irish championships, in which they will be partners in the men's doubles. Miss Harman is a sound selection for Ireland, for she is the best of our young players, and was a competitor at Wimbledon during the last two years.

The English team is strong and well balanced. Cooper was a member of the international club team which toured last summer in South Africa, and took a set off Sidney Wood at Wimbledon last week, while Hare is England's most promising youngster, who has come to the front only this season, and is regarded as a future Davis Cup hope. This will be Ritchie's third visit to Dublin, and he is the holder of the mixed doubles championship with Miss Hilda Wallis. Meredith was one of Rogers's victims at Wimbledon last week, but though he failed to win a set, he ran the Irishman close in all three. The women are particularly strong, for Miss Yorke is one of the finest woman doubles players in the world, and Miss Hardwick, like Hare, is regarded as a coming star.

ROWING.

TRINITY EIGHT AT HENLEY.

DUBLIN CREW WINS TWO HEATS IN LADIES' PLATE.

NO finer race has been witnessed at Henley Royal Regatta than that between Leander and London in the first heat of the Grand Challenge Cup yesterday.

London were the holders, but Leander beat them by a length, and smashed the Leander record that had existed for forty-three years.

Conditions were perfect, and it was not surprising that the Thames Cup record was twice equalled by Kingston and Yale University.

Trinity College, Dublin, won their first heat of the Ladies' Plate, beating Radley by two lengths in 7 mins. 18 secs. Trinity struck 10, 20 and 38 in the first quarter, half and full minute. Radley led for the first few strokes, but Trinity soon drew ahead and were three-quarters of a length up at the first signal. They gave a ten here, and were clear at the barrier, where they dropped to a strong paddle at 28. Fawley was reached in 3.26. and from there they drew ahead to win comfortably.

In the third round they beat First Trinity, Cambridge, by one length in the good time of 7 mins. 5 secs. Trinity made an excellent start, striking 40 in the first minute, and were leading by three-parts of a length at the top of the island. The barrier was reached in 2 mins., with Trinity a length ahead. They were striking 32 and beginning to lengthen out more. At Fawley, which was reached in 3 mins. 25 secs., they were a length and a half ahead. First Trinity came up to within a length along the enclosures, but Trinity held on to their lead, in spite of a certain amount of excitement in the bows of the boat.

This was a better row than the morning one. The boat was running smoother, and the crew were a good deal longer. They should be able to beat Magdalen, Oxford, to-day.

Following an early quiet spell the market tended higher, and most sections of the list maintained a fair level throughout the day, though final prices were not quite up to best. Business was again small, the turnover totalling only 440,000 shares.

The market finished slightly below the day's best level, but the tendency at the close was firm

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Thursday.

The Grain Market strengthened to-day on bullish European crop news, while the firmness of cables and some good absorption by commission houses early in the session were stimulating influences in the rise. Reports indicating that the shipments of Argentine wheat were of poor quality also stimulated sentiment. The prices of wheat early advanced on reports of unfavourable weather conditions in the South-West and on fair purchasing by outside interests, but the market later reacted partially on a forecast of showers in the North-West and on local pressure, due to the appearance of "hedging" sales. Prices, however, again rallied on renewed absorption by commission houses and owing to an absence of pressure. The maize market improved on private advices indicating that the crop in the South-West was deteriorating owing to the heat and absence of rainfall. Subsequently prices reacted on liquidation, influenced by reports of favourable rains in other parts of the belt and a forecast of showers in sections of the South-West area, while news of cooler temperatures also had a depressing effect. The market, however, finally rallied partially in sympathy with wheat. Rye fluctuated in unison with wheat. Oats values improved on buying, which was credited to cereal interests.

WHEAT opened very steady at ⅛c. rise, and closed firm, 1⅛c. to 1⅜c. higher.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

BARCLAY'S BANK.

Interim dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum on the "A" Shares and 14 per cent. per annum on the "B" and "C" Shares respectively. These payments are the same as those for the first half-year of 1933.

UNION DISCOUNT COMPANY.

Interim dividend at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum. (Rate is the same as a year ago.)

COMMERCIAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA.

Dividends for the half-year on Preference shares at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum and on Ordinary shares at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable on 10th August in Australian currency. (Same.)

Yam Seng Rubber Co.—The result of the year's working, including £2,752 brought forward from last account and after writing off £1,321 depreciation and charging £739 for re-planting, is £3,647, to which it is proposed to transfer from the reserve for equalisation of dividends £3,146, making a total of £6,793, out of which the directors recommend payment of a dividend of 7½ per cent., less income tax, absorbing £4,719, leaving a balance to be carried forward to next account of £2,074 The results for the previous year, after taking credit for dividends from investments, were a loss of £1,126, to which was added depreciation £2,255, making a total of £3,381. This amount was deducted from credit balance brought forward £6,133, leaving a credit balance of £2,752 to be carried forward. The system of rotational resting of selected areas was continued during the year, and the restricted quantity of rubber harvested was 657,597lbs. as compared with 705,281lbs. in the previous year. The buildings, plant and machinery have been maintained in good working order; necessary upkeep and replacements have been charged against revenue and an adequate sum has been provided for depreciation. In view of the strong financial position of the company and the altered conditions in the rubber industry, the directors feel justified in recommending withdrawal from the reserve for equalisation of dividends of the before-mentioned sum of £3,146, which is equivalent to 5 per cent. on the issued capital of the company, less income tax, leaving £3,288 still to the credit of that reserve. The investments, all trustee securities, although returned in the balance sheet at £26,923, are of greater market value. The visiting agent reports very satisfactorily on the estate, and mentions that it is adjusting itself easily to the competitive conditions of working imposed by rising market prices. Mr. W. S. Hayes and Mr. R. McC. Dillon retire by rotation, and, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election. Messrs. Stokes Bros. and Pim retire, and offer themselves for re-appointment.

"Belle Vue," Manchester.—Dividend of 3 per cent. on 6 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares for half-year ended October 31, 1933.

Batu Lintang Rubber.—Dividend of 2½ per cent. (1932/'33 nil.)

Galphele Tea and Rubber Estates.—Dividend of 5 per cent. for the past year.

Charles Kinloch and Co.—Net profit for twelve months £8,989 (previous year £6,941). Add £4,196 brought in, making £13,185. Dividend of 7½ per cent. (6 per cent.), less tax.

Canadian General Investments.—Dividend of 10 cents per share on the paid-up capital stock for quarter.

Distillers Co.—The full accounts show, after providing for interest on Debenture stocks, a balance of £2,140,622, an increase of £416,494 on the balance shown in the previous year's accounts. The Ordinary dividend is increased from 17½ per cent. to 20 per cent. £1,250,000, as before, is placed to reserve, making that fund £3,250,000, and £100,000 is transferred to superannuation and provident fund, leaving £316,339, compared with £263,421, to go forward. The report states that during the year the company sold its shareholding in Distillers Corporation at a profit, which has thereby increased the investment reserve. The Distillers Co., Ltd., has entered into an agreement to acquire an investment of 337,000 shares of no par value in National Distillers Products Corporation of Virginia. This corporation, in turn, has shares of no par value representing a 40 per cent. interest in the Distillers company's new subsidiary—namely, the Distillers Co., Ltd., of Délaware, U.S.A., which has been incorporated to manufacture and sell gin in the U.S.A.

Egyptian Hotels.—Profit £9,858, against £12,831. Dividend on Ordinary of 2½ per cent. for year. (Nil.)

Moabund Tea.—Final dividend of 10 per cent., making 15 per cent. (Same.)

Michael Nairn and Greenwich.—Interim dividend of 5 per cent. (the same as last year, when there was a final of 7½ per cent.).

Peacock and Nilambe (Ceylon) Tea and Rubber.—Dividend on Ordinary 2 per cent., less tax. (Against nil.)

Steaua Romana (British).—Interim dividend of 2 per cent. In July of last year the company announced an interim dividend of 2 per cent., together with a special dividend of 2 per cent., the latter resulting from the receipt of interest from the Steaua Romana Co. of Bucharest, which had been deferred. This was followed by a final of 2 per cent., making 6 per cent. for the year.

Traction and General Investment Trust.—Interim dividends of 2½ per cent. on the Preference stock and 4 per cent. on the Ordinary stock, both less tax.

United Dominions Trust.—Profit before directors' fees and tax, but after making provision for rebate of interest, bad debts, contingencies, etc., during the year ended June 30, 1934, amounted to £130,290, compared with £105,989 in 1932/'33 The "A" shares again receive 15 per cent. and the "B" 5 per cent. The transfer to general reserve is increased from £40,000 to £60,000 and the carry forward from £23,113 to £24,175

Vallambrosa Rubber.—Directors have resolved to recommend a dividend of 15 per cent. for the year to 31st March, 1934, less tax. (Against nil.)

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

SUMMER PRUNING.

Writing on his subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

The genial weather of late has greatly augmented the growth upon all kinds of fruit trees, especially those growing against walls, or as espaliers, and as the result luxuriant masses of foliage are daily becoming more in evidence. This is technically known as "breastwood," and gardeners as a rule do not care to interfere with its growth until after mid-summer. The reason for this is that by leaving these projecting growths until now the wood becomes somewhat hard, and by shortening back to about four or five leaves the buds at the axils are not likely to push into second growth, and those nearest to the base will be benefited by the light and air thus admitted, which will enable them to develop and probably form fruiting spurs. Apples, Pears and Plums, being similar in growth, may be classed together for this treatment, but the two last, being earlier, may with advantage receive first attention. The higher parts of the trees should be operated on a few days in advance of those lower down, in order to equalise the flow of the sap to all parts of the tree. Nailing or tying-in of terminal shoots, if required for the extension of the branches, should be completed, after which the thinning of the fruit may be proceeded with as opportunity offers.
